UCCC Students Give Views on State Residency Law

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON
New York State's Election Law which forbids student dormitory residents from registering to vote in their college towns, has been upheld by a State Supreme Court Justice at Syracuse.

Justice James P. O'Donnel also turned aside a challenge to the three month residency for all new voters of a county.

Lawyers for college students in the Syracuse and Utica areas, who brought the actions, said they would appeal to the Appellate Division next Monday. Other challenges to the student-residency section of the election laws are pending in Nassau and Erie counties.

Ulster County Board of Elections has abided by the law and has offered aid to students wishing to use absentee ballots for voting in their home towns. To date about 5,000 to 6,000 absentee ballot applications have been made and about 25 to 30 a day are being received in Ulster County from Ulster residents away from home.

In a random sampling of students on the campus of Ulster County Community College this week, The Freeman interviewed 16 potential voters about their views on the residency law and inquiring as to whether they had registered. Eleven of them had and five had not.

Eight enrolled in a party of their choice with five registering as Democrats and three as Republicans and three not enrolling at all.

All 16 felt that the majority 18 to 20 year olds are qualified to vote. Four out of the 16 said they knew who the candidates would be on the Nov. 2 ballot. Nine said they did not and three felt they knew "some" of the candidates.

Robert Stenson of Kingston registered but did not enroll. He said he was "pretty sure" who the candidates are and agreed that college students living away from home should use absentee ballots rather than being allowed to register in the same town in which their campus is located.

Andrew Balch of Rosendale did not register because, he said, he felt that the difference in the political parties is minimal. Describing his feelings, he commented, "apathetic is the word."

Special

Al Randall of Stone Ridge didn't register either because he "hadn't gotten around to it." But, he added, I will now that I realize that I missed my opportunity this time.

Beverly Dawson of Ellenville, who registered Democratic, has positive views on the voter picture. Most young people had excuses for not registering, she suggested, adding, "I think that is wrong . . . they should have made it a point to register . . . they wanted the vote, they should take the responsibility."

Beverly also volunteered that she thinks students should register on their own and that they shouldn't be pushed into it.

Greg Taplar of Plainview, L.I. used an absentee form to register Democratic. On the question of students voting at home or in a college town, he suggested, "The town belongs to the people, not to the students. They are only there nine months of the year. Most live in dorms, they are under college law not town law."

Steve Davis of Krumville registered but did not enroll.

"Maybe I will sometime." On the question of where to register he said he felt it is unfair to ask four-year college students to have to vote in their home town but that it was appropriate for those attending two-year colleges.

Debra Brown of Kingston did not register for "no particular reason". She feels that students having to register in their home town is unfair and that 18-20 years olds are qualified to vote.

Robert Smith of Ellenville registered Democratic and does not feel it is unfair to ask students to register at home or by absentee ballot.

David Rider of Germantown did not register to vote, but if he had, would have enrolled Republican. He said he wasn't aware of the registration dates, but knows most of the candidates. He would like to see students be able to register where they attend school. "It would be a lot easier."

Bob Gorsline of Port Ewen registered Democratic, thinks four year students should vote in a campus town but not the two-year students and says he is familiar with all the candidates.

Gary Reader of Saugerties and his sister, Mary Ann both registered Republican. Gary feels students should vote in their home towns "if they are going home eventually to live" and Mary Ann said it depends whether or not a person is going

COOPERATING—Organized labor agreed to cooperate with the Administration's Phase II economic controls. Fitzsimmons. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Post-Freeze: Key Boards Next

WASHINGTON (AP) — After winning organized labor's cooperation in his post-freeze economic controls, President Nixon turned today to lining up members for two key boards that will vote on future wage-price increases.

With the 90-day wage-price freeze due to expire Nov. 13, time is becoming crucial on the appointments. The boards must be operating with wage and price guidelines developed by that time.

The White House said membership on the 15-member Pay Board and the 7-member Price Commission will be announced soon. Some potential members contacted "are not particularly interested," said one official.

As the search for members went on, the administration readied legislation that may spell out details of Nixon's Phase 2 program.

Not only would the bill provide standby authority to control interest and dividends, one official said, but it would create a panel of judges to hear wage-price cases and would empower the Pay Board and the Price Commission to issue subpoenas.

The threat of a labor boycott of post-freeze controls collapsed Tuesday when the nation's three most powerful union leaders agreed to help Nixon's Pay Board try to control inflation.

But the labor leaders, AFL-CIO President George Meany, Teamsters President Frank E. Fitzsimmons and United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock, acted only after Nixon gave assurances the tripartite board's decisions would not be subject to a veto by the Cost of Living Council.

The President did so in a memorandum sent to the labor leaders personally initiated with his "OK."

"We will serve on the Pay Board," said the union leaders, who represent some 17 million workers. Nixon responded by saying "the country won" by the decision.

But the agreement between labor leaders and the administration is still fuzzy. It is not clear how the post-freeze mechanisms will operate.

Labor had withheld its support of Phase 2 because the administration held out the possibility the Cost of Living Council could exercise veto power over general wage criteria developed by the Pay Board.

The memorandum initiated by Nixon carried this key paragraph:

"The COLC will not approve, disapprove or serve as an appeal level for case decisions made by the Pay Board and the Price Commission and it will not approve, revise, veto or revoke specific standards or criteria developed by the Pay Board and Price Commission."

At the same time, it said, the council would serve as an over-all policy review group to make sure the actions of the two boards "are of such a pattern and impact as to achieve stated goals and objectives." Nixon wants to cut inflation in half by the end of 1972, to a range of 2 to 3 per cent.

But this satisfied the AFL-CIO. Its 35-member Executive Council said this meant the board would be "completely autonomous." Last week, the administration was saying the board would be semi-autonomous.

Nixon called the dispute a misunderstanding. Meany and George P. Shultz, director of the Office of Management and Budget, said Nixon on himself could exercise veto power over Pay Board decisions.

"That is always understood," Meany said of a veto vested in the President's hands. Shultz said if the machinery failed to do the job, the President could abolish it and try a new approach.

Council to Vote On $91 Thousand Manpower Grant

KINGSTON drivers. Details on dollar for Phase II, Savago said, "due to the incidence of high unemployment based on information obtained from the welfare rolls." The total City of Kingston program to be announced when all job positions are determined will amount to $97,530 which will include the city's 10 per cent share in cash or kind. The local contribution may be administrative costs, office space, equipment or other items, Savago said.

Peter J. Savago, chairman of the Ulster County Legislature, announced today that the city will receive the $91,320 under Phase II for the Emergency Employment Act to provide transitional jobs for at least one year. Phase II is funded at $228,300.

Mayor Francis R. Koenig called the special meeting of the Council for Thursday night at 7:30. Under his city program, two clerks will be hired in the treasurer's office at $5,000 per year each to fill previous vacancies caused by retirement and a principal clerk to the assessor will be hired at $5,500 a year to replace Walter Tatarzewski, former principal clerk who was appointed city assessor on Oct. 1. Also included under the mayor's program are such jobs as repair of guardrails, refurbishing of snow equipment, sewer maintenance and truck

Phase I of the program. The city expects to get more funds under the Phase I part of the program for such projects as leaf collection and collection of salvable waste materials. Nixon Trip — A Logical Move

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's announcement that he will attend a summit conference in Moscow next May should have come as no surprise, say U.S. officials and foreign diplomats.

"It is a logical extension of the growing improvement in American-Russian dealings since Nixon took office," one diplomat said. "The only surprise is that so few people were talking about the possibility."

One of those who did talk in advance about such a trip was Soviet Communist party Chairman Leonid Brezhnev, who U.S. sources say had been discussing a Nixon visit with several people for several weeks. But whether it should have been a surprise, the fact is that Nixon did catch many people off balance when he appeared unexpectedly at the routine Tuesday morning news briefing and said:

"The leaders of the United States and the Soviet Union in their exchanges during the past year, have agreed that a meeting between them would be desirable once sufficient progress had been made in negotiations at lower levels. In light of the recent advances in bilateral and multilateral negotiations involving the two countries, it has been agreed that such a meeting will take place in Moscow in the latter part of May 1972."

Following reading of that announcement, released at the same time in Moscow, the President told questioning newsmen he had agreed to the

Moscow summit because of "a possibility of making significant progress."

Although he declined to detail what areas will be discussed with the Soviet leaders, Nixon indicated the talks will cover arms control, the Mideast, a European security conference and a balanced, mutual troop cut in Central Europe.

Nixon was specific in outlining the areas of progress he said led to the summit talk agreement.

"We have had a treaty with regard to the seabeds. We have had one with regard to biological weapons. We have had an agreement coming out of the SALT talks (strategic arms limitation talks) with regard to the hotline and accidental war and, of course, most important of all—and I think this is the item that, for both us and for them, led us to conclude that now was the time for a summit meeting—we have had an agreement on Berlin."

What made no difference in settling on a Moscow summit in May, the President declared emphatically, was his plan to visit mainland China before that month.

"The two," he said, "are independent trips. We are going to Peking for the purpose of discussing matters of bilateral concern there. And I will be going to the Soviet Union for the purpose of discussing matters that involve the United States and the Soviet Union . . ."

And speculation to the effect that one has been planned for the purpose of affecting the other would be entirely inaccurate.

Congressional reaction was positive. "I cannot see where anything but good can come from it," said House Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla.

Similar statements came from Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott and his generally conservative colleague, Colorado Republican Gordon Allott, who said he approves of the trip.

Nixon himself indicated he expects good results from the summit, which will be his third visit to the Soviet Union.

Nixon said he has constantly pointed out to the Russians and the American people: "I did not believe a summit would serve a useful purpose unless there was something to come out of it. I do not believe in having summit meetings simply for the purpose of having a meeting. But regardless of his hopes, the President emphasized in a later statement made at a ceremony on Capitol Hill there will be no summit settlement at the expense of U.S. vital interests.

"Unless and until we have mutual agreements . . . the United States must maintain its defense at adequate levels."

The Nixon summit will be the fifth such conference since President Dwight D. Eisenhower met with Russian officials at Geneva in 1955.

Eisenhower attended the next conference as well, in Washington in 1959. That was followed three years later when President John F. Kennedy and Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev met in Vienna and a 1967 summit meetings simply for the purpose of having a meet-

Truman Secretary of State

Acheson Dies of Heart Attack

SANDY SPRING, Md. (UPI)—Dean Gooderham Acheson, the impeccably tailored diplomat who helped forge cold war policy when the United States was the only stable power in the free world, died Tuesday of an apparent heart attack at his country estate.

The Secretary of State in the Truman administration and an unsalaried foreign affairs advisor to Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson was 78.

His son, David C., said his funeral arrangements and the official cause of death would be made today. The son said directness, his wit and his intelligence, will be greatly missed.

Acheson was stricken about 6 p.m. Tuesday with his wife, the former Alice Stanley of Detroit, in attendance.

President Nixon said, "It is a measure of Dean Acheson's stature as man and statesman that almost 20 years after his service as secretary of state he continued to be recognized as one of the towering figures of his time."

Secretary of State William P. Rogers said, "his erudition and his directness, his wit and his intelligence, will be greatly missed."

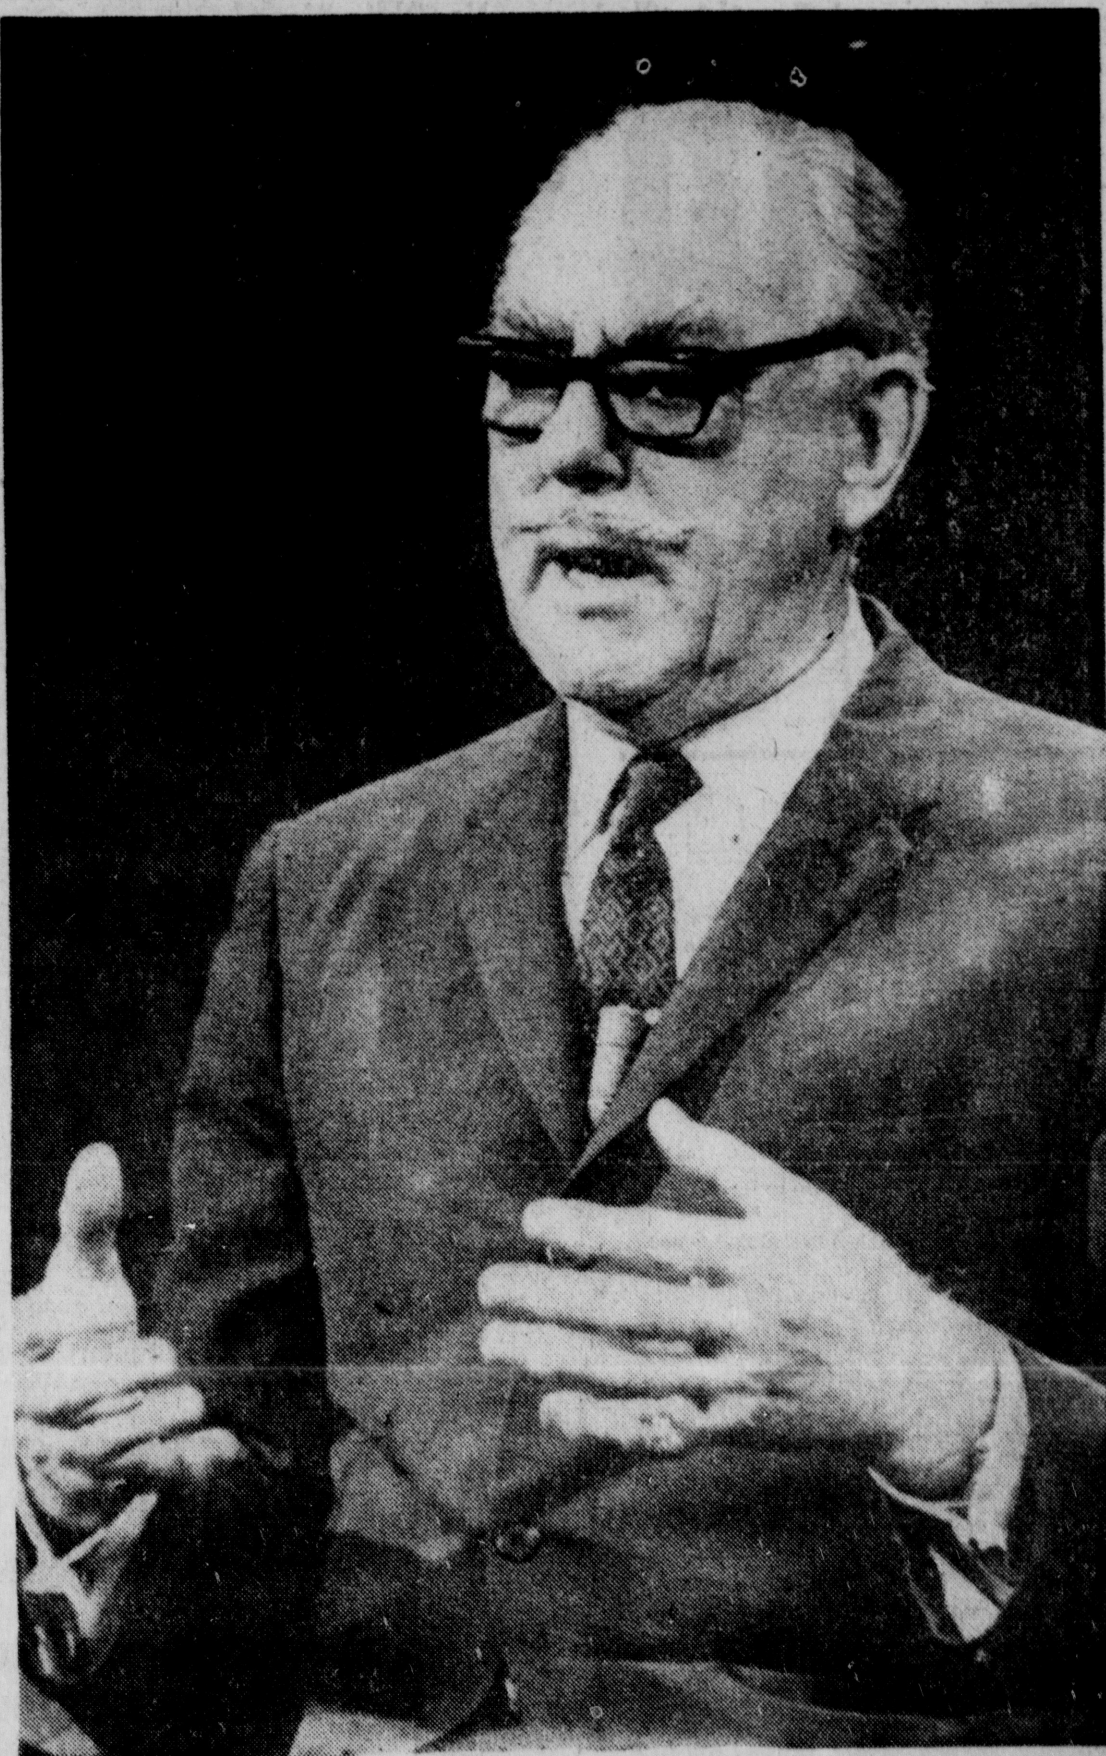

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., said he "will be remembered for his great contributions to the cause of peace and security."

Acheson, a graduate of Groton School, Yale and Harvard, came to Washington with President Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal in 1933 and held intermittent office until President Harry S. Truman named him secretary of state in 1949. He served until 1953.

Crash, Drug Charge

By WALTER S. CLARK

Three Saugerties youths were injured shortly after 11:30 p.m. Tuesday when the car in which they were riding went out of control on Neighborhood Road in this town and slammed into a utility pole.

The operator of the vehicle, 18-year-old Louis Whitaker of 34 East Bridge Street, Saugerties, was cited for driving while under the influence of drugs and criminal possession of dangerous drugs sixth degree—marijuana.

Whitaker was issued an appearance ticket by Troopers J. J. Brainard and Robert C. Schank of the Hurley barracks, 11, summoning the youth to appear before Town Justice Arthur A. on his chin.

Reilly Wednesday, Oct. 20, at 2 p.m. Under a new section of the law, police issue the appearance ticket, and a defendant is not required to be arraigned at the time of his arrest on a misdemeanor charge.

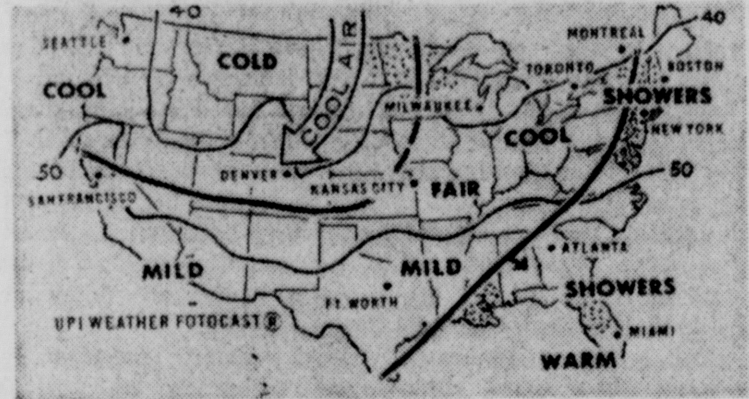

Troopers reported Whitaker was driving his car north on the road when the vehicle went off the right shoulder into the pole.

Whitaker sustained lacerations of the chin. Passengers in the car were Stanley Kogut Jr., 18, of Route 2, Box 568, who suffered a laceration of the forehead and Michael McKeon, 19, of 11, who received cuts before Town Justice Arthur A. on his chin.

The injured were taken to Kingston Hospital by Fatum's Ambulance.

Another traffic accident occurred at 5:55 p.m. Tuesday on Route 209 in Spring Glen, according to Ellenville State Police, who reported the car was operated by Ronald Murphy, 21, of Napanoch. The vehicle was traveling south on the highway when the operator failed to negotiate a curve.

The car went off the right shoulder and hit a utility pole. Murphy, who was cited by Trooper Robert K. Baker for driving at a speed not reasonable and prudent, sustained lacerations and other injuries. A passenger in his car, John Jessek, 20, of Wawarsing, also sustained lacerations. Both were treated at Ellenville Community Hospital.

SAUGERTIES
The Main Street School in the Saugerties Central School District is now called the Lawrence M. Cahill School, in honor of that long-time Saugerties educator.

A resolution by Peter Kramer to change the name of the Main Street School was approved at Lawrence M. Cahill School Tuesday night's meeting of the Board of Education.

Cahill, now retired, served as a teacher and administrator in the Saugerties Central School District for many years. The school is now called the Lawrence M. Cahill School, in honor of that long-time Saugerties educator.

The Board also voted to rent a room at the St. Mary's School, during the open house hours, parents will be given the opportunity to visit their child's attending classes in the Library classes, view displays of school basement will be moved to their work and meet faculty members.

In other matters, approval was given to the Saugerties High School Council to use the High School auditorium on Friday, announced the district's Open Nov. 5 from 8-11 p.m. to stage House dates. They are: Glasco a Folk Concert.

An RV Clarification

The reports of the October 5 meeting of the Board of Education of the Rondout Valley Central School District that gave the impression that the school district had employed "too many teachers" for the 1971-72 academic year, was denied today by Superintendent of classes and a more educational sound operation of the school district. Robertaccio repeated, "We house date has yet been an-

See Letters to the Editor on Page 4.

Robertaccio, clarifying this situation explained that, at no time during the Board of Education meeting, did he state that "too many teachers" had been employed by the district. A part of that meeting was devoted to a discussion on the earlier employment of 11 additional teachers this year.

According to Robertaccio, the school district "did not, this year, experience the same growth as in past years," although the same indicators were used. It was anticipated that an additional 160 students would enroll in the district in September, but the actual enrollment figures fell short of that mark.

But, said Robertaccio, each of the 11 teachers were employed "for a specific purpose, based upon the needs of the educational programs of the school district." Each new teacher is currently working in the position for which he was employed. Robertaccio further emphasized that there is a definite need for the additional teachers to carry out established programs.

Cornell Hecklers Fail To Phase N. Y. Mayor

ITHACA, N.Y. (UPI) — New York City Mayor John V. Lindsay says the heckling he received on an upstate tour "didn't bother me, it was just like any other day at City Hall."

Lindsay made the remark to a newsman Tuesday night after his speech at Cornell University was interrupted by hecklers who claimed he was not doing all he could to improve prison conditions in New York City even though he has indirectly criticized Governor Rockefeller's handling of the Attica prison uprising.

The mayor did not appear to be flustered by the hecklers, observers said, and instead invited them to use the microphone in Cornell's Bailey Hall to express their views.

Several young protesters tried to take advantage of Lindsay's offer but in turn they were shouted down by the majority of the some 2,200 persons who were on hand for Lindsay's appearance.

The Cornell stop was the final one on a day-long tour that took Lindsay to Elmira, Owego, Binghamton and here for a series of talks with civic groups, college audiences and Democratic political leaders in the Southern Tier and Central New York area.

At each opportunity Lindsay repeated his theme that political figures must exercise power with greater feeling toward the people.

The former Republican who became a Democrat this summer also met with Democratic State Chairman John Burns, who has said that Lindsay Lindsay Winner in N.H., But It's Not John V.

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — New York Mayor John V. Lindsay, considered a potential candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, already has won one race for president in New Hampshire, the state with the nation's first presidential preference primary.

But it was John Lindsay, the schoolboy, and not Lindsay, the mayor, who won the October 1939 race for senior class president at St. Paul's High School in Concord, a private school with a history of 115 years.

His teachers remember him as "an outstanding student and personality" who as class president visited the younger kids in the lower school to ask if there was anything he could do to help.

At Elmira, Lindsay would not confirm that he had adopted a policy of maximum speed in quelling prison disturbances. He said he had established a policy of "maximum flexibility."

Questioned about published reports quoting Leo Zeffetti, head of the city's Correction Officer's Benevolent Association, that a "swift entry" policy was approved by the mayor following last year's prison riots, Lindsay replied:

"The system is set up to handle each situation with maximum flexibility," Lindsay answered.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court has unanimously refused to hear the appeal of a New York couple who fled to Florida to avoid surrendering custody of the little girl known as "Baby Lenore."

The high court declined Tuesday to review an appeal of a New York State Court of Appeals ruling ordering Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas DeMartino of Brooklyn to give up the child.

Since the appeals court ruling, a Florida appellate court has ruled against the child's natural mother, Mrs. Olga Scarpetta, 33, and awarded custody of the child to the DeMartinos.

However, it appears that the DeMartinos are still bound in New York State by that state's appeals court ruling, and would have to surrender the child and face contempt charges if they returned to New York.

Stanley Rosenblatt, a Florida attorney for Mrs. Scarpetta, said the Florida Supreme Court may be asked next to hear the case, and another appeal could subsequently be made to the Supreme Court on grounds other than those used Tuesday by the DeMartinos and their New York City attorney, Jacob Fuchsberg.

Miss Scarpetta, a native of Colombia, said she went to New York City to have the baby out of wedlock in May 1970. Five days after the birth, she put the baby up for adoption through the Spence-Chapin Adoption Service.

The DeMartinos took the little girl home on June 18, 1970, with the hope of adopting her. Miss Scarpetta, who said she was "ashamed" to learn she was pregnant, changed her mind and tried to regain the child through the New York courts.

DeMartino, a Brooklyn lawyer, fled with his family, which includes a 4-year old adopted daughter, to Florida after the New York appeals court ruling. Miss Scarpetta followed, unsuccessfully filing suit in Miami Circuit Court in June. Both that court and the third District Court of Appeals in Miami rejected her bid for the child.

In its ruling, the circuit court held that the best interests of the child would be served by "cutting the strings clean."

More Work: Justice Douglas

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Justice William O. Douglas, at 72 the senior member of the Supreme Court, thinks the justices should take on even more work and more controversy.

But the Court is short two members and it faces an ever-increasing workload that could reach 5,000 cases this year. On Tuesday it rejected several hundred appeals — many of them cases the activist Douglas had voted to hear.

Out of nearly 700 cases reviewed, the Court agreed to hear only 18. It requires the vote of four justices for a case to be accepted for oral argument.

Douglas wanted to hear a New York case challenging the Vietnam war, the second such case to be brought to the Court and the second denied a hearing.

He also would have heard the claim of prisoners at New York's Attica state prison that they were denied the right to counsel during a state inquiry into last month's bloody uprising.

And he wanted the Court to review a California law that frees the state from any responsibility for injuries to, or caused by, any prisoner.

With the death of Justice Hugo L. Black at 85 and the retirement of Justice John M. Harlan, 72, Douglas is now the oldest member of the Court and has the most seniority. He was appointed by President Franklin Delano Roosevelt April 17, 1939, not quite two years after Roosevelt named Black.

Though his views changed somewhat in recent years, Black often led the activist Warren Court. Now all that is left of those who constituted a majority under former Chief Justice Earl Warren are Douglas and Justices William J. Brennan Jr. and Thurgood Marshall.

Brennan joined with Douglas in voting to hear several cases Tuesday. But Douglas wanted a

1968 story on black athletes, track coach to proceed with a $2.5 million libel suit against Newsweek magazine because of appeals court can rule on an appeal on adverse decisions of Federal District Judge John T. Curtin of Buffalo. He referred the request to the full, seven-member court.

There is no way to undo the harm to prisoners questioned without legal protection, the application said.

It was filed by Phyllis Skloot Bamberger of the New York Legal Aid Society and bore the names of the American Civil Liberties Union in Buffalo, the NAACP Legal Defense Fund, the National Conference of Black Lawyers, the National Lawyers Guild and the Law Center for Constitutional Rights.

Justice Thurgood Marshall, who administers the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court in which New York is located, was asked to

Attica Inmate Questioning Gets Green Light From Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The state can continue to question Attica prison inmates about last month's uprising which claimed 43 lives, the nation's highest court has ruled.

The Supreme Court issued a brief order Tuesday, rejecting by a 6-1 vote a request for a temporary restraining order or an injunction to halt the questioning of convicts until they are provided with legal aid.

Justice William O. Douglas voted against the ruling, saying he would like to hear the legal aid request and other claims of alleged brutality to inmates since the rebellion was put down Sept. 13.

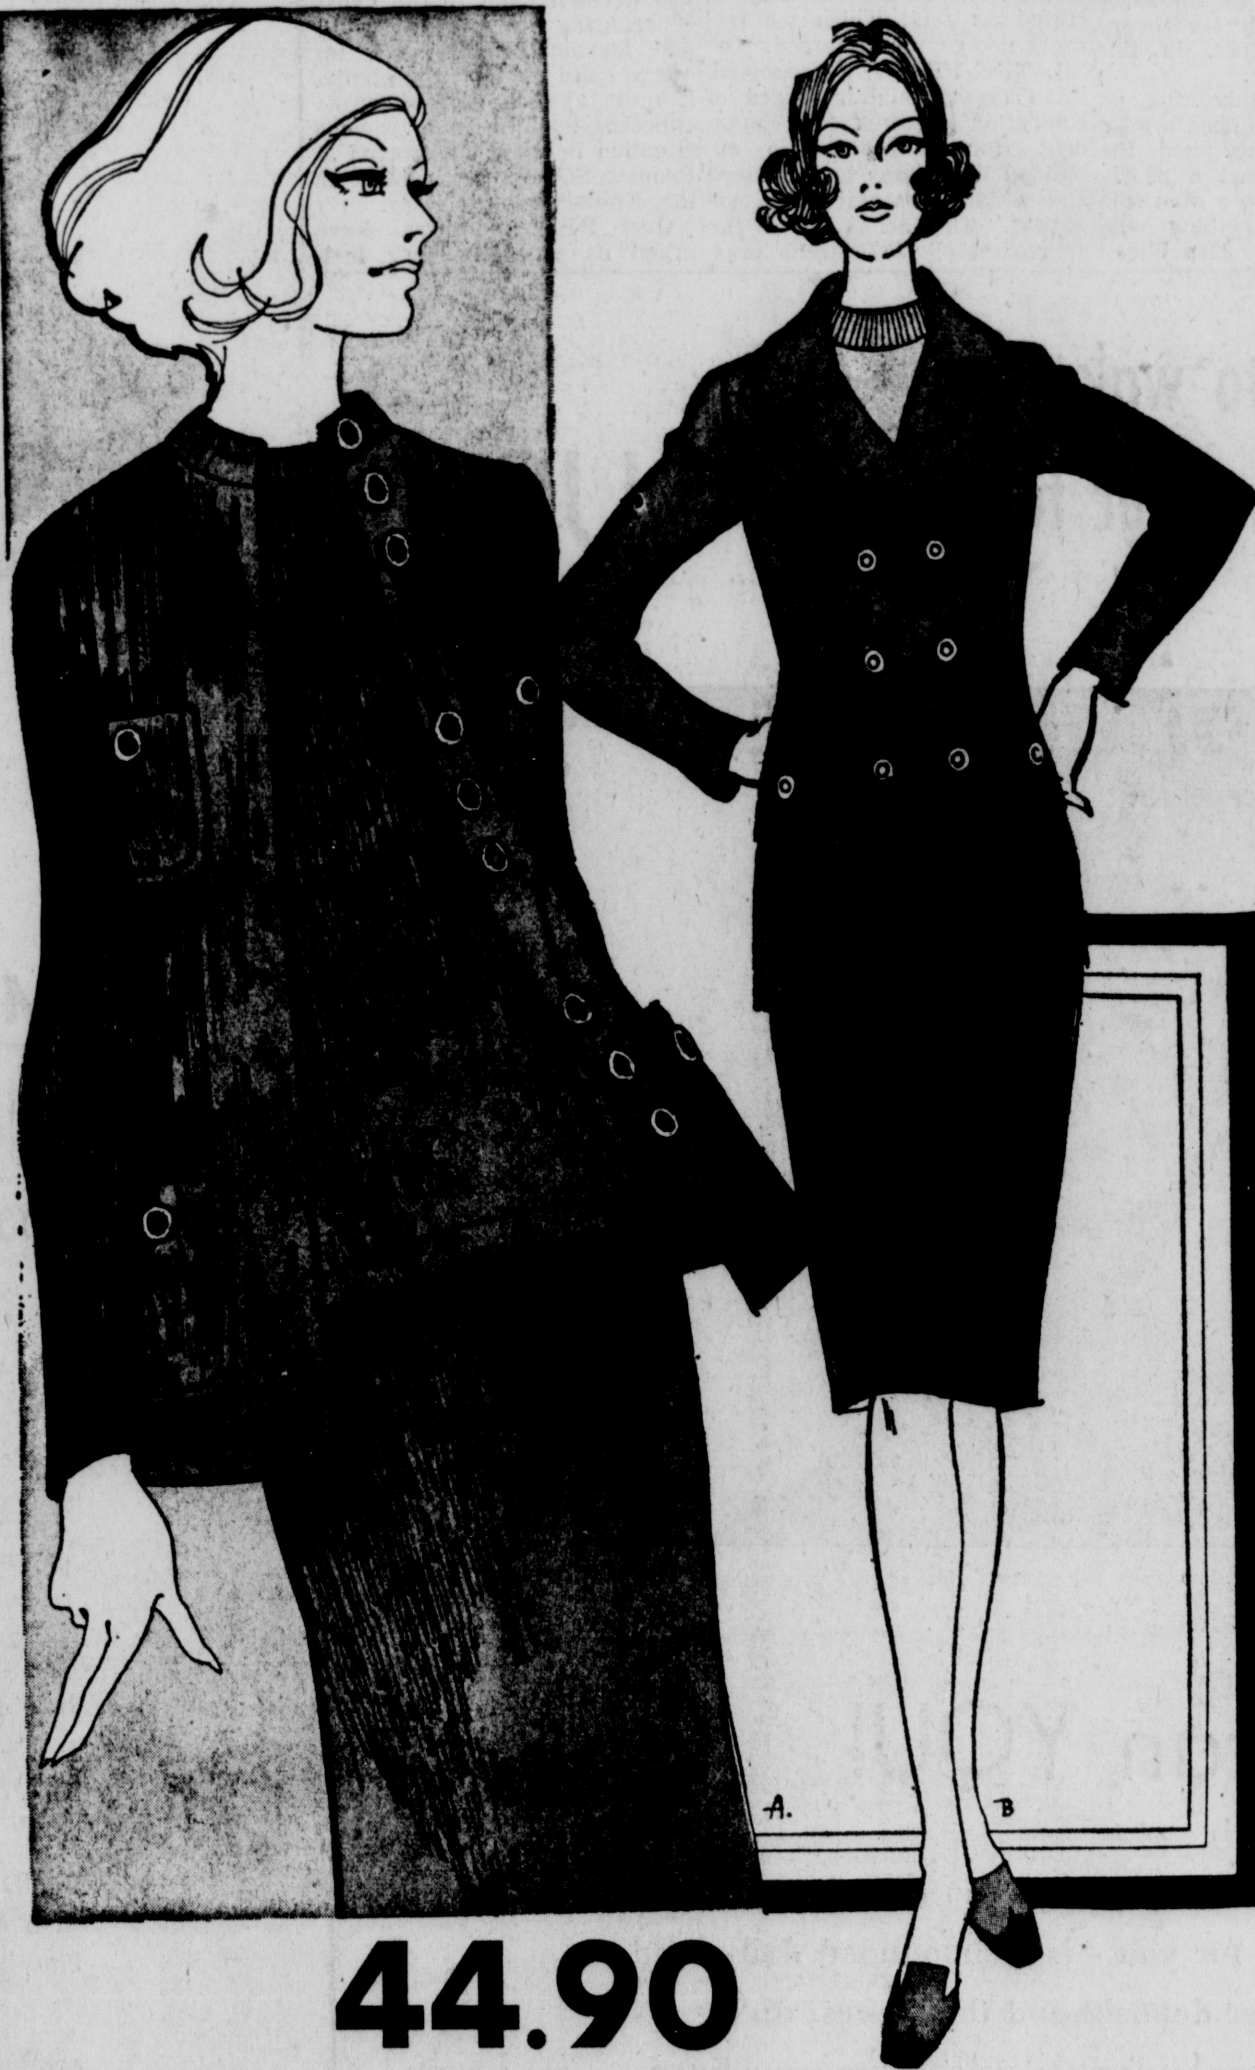

This is a case in which interest runs high "and which raises grave questions concerning procedures for law enforcement that comport with the constitution," Douglas said.

"The need for an immediate, authoritative determination of the prisoners' claims is paramount. It would serve no interest of the public, or of judicial order, for that determination to await the exhaustion of remedies in the lower courts."

Douglas said the court's ruling in the celebrated "Miranda" case that a person questioned in custody must be advised of his right to keep silent "is part of a prisoner's bill of rights."

Justice Thurgood Marshall, who administers the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court in which New York is located, was asked to

Rebuke Nixon

We, the Executive Committee of the Ulster County Conservative Party, are profoundly disturbed by the continuing erosion of our personal freedoms and corresponding personal responsibilities. Consequently, we view with alarm the recent presidential proclamations which allege to be the panacea of current economic ills, domestic and foreign. In fact, they seem to set the stage for the permanent enslavement of a formerly free people, with the manacles of economic serfdom. Through the destruction of a free-choice market place, the president has betrayed fundamental principles of economic freedom.

The Ulster County Executive Committee hereby petitions the State Committee of the Conservative Party of New York State to rebuke the President, and his policies, in the strongest possible terms, and to withhold all present and future support of his administration.

Ill-advised domestic policies, which have been pursued over a number of years, have led to inflation. One of the most significant of these is deficit spending by the government. President Nixon, fully realizing the dangerous detrimental effect that unbalanced Federal Budgets have on our economy (especially the hideous inflationary effect on our paychecks), continues to spend at a rate which has resulted in the second highest Federal Deficit since World War II.

It is well recognized that a second major factor in the disastrous cost-push inflation, which this country is experiencing, is the militant, monopolistic labor movement. Through unrealistic wage demands made without any regard to productivity, self-serving union bosses have destroyed our competitive position in world markets, thus eliminating domestic jobs. President Nixon has been intrepid in his refusal to deal with the union monopolies, and their adverse effect on our economy.

President Nixon promised to defend the free enterprise system, which has given more material goods to a greater number of people than any other system conceived by man. Yet he has now embarked on a controlled socialistic program which substitutes tyrannical views of the vast majority of coercion for our hard won free society. This is contrary to the people who voted for Nixon.

The bad domestic policies previously mentioned have led to the unpalatable choice between domestic austerity, and policies which attempt to export our unemployment to our allies in the free world (beggar-my-neighbor policies). Our President has chosen the latter as the cornerstone of his New Election Policy for 1972.

Mr. Nixon has exhibited such singlemindedness in seeking reelection, that he has not maintained the value of the dollar. Inappropriate policies have lowered the once proud dollar to its lowest standing ever.

Mr. Nixon promised to lead the free world against the determined, imperialistic, Communist Party Policy of enslaving the remaining half of the world. He has not done this. In fact, he has abandoned all self respect and will degrade himself and this country, by his proposed pilgrimage to the bloody altar of the perverted prosecutor of Peking.

In view of the totally unacceptable nature of these recent positions, Mr. Nixon is no longer worthy of Conservative support.

Open Letter

Editor, The Freeman:

This is an open letter to Congressman Hamilton Fish which we would like to have printed.

Dear Congressman Fish:

We are two young people who worked hard for your election in past campaigns. We admire you greatly but are deeply disappointed by your statement backing William Bartles for County Executive.

You appear to base your statement strictly on the theory that the party must rally round the winner of the primary. We can see some merit to this contention, especially when two more-or-less equally qualified people seek to run for the same position. We think the theory falls apart, however, in this particular instance.

This fall, Dave Schoentag, an incumbent who has done a good job for the county and the party. Narrowly lost a poorly attended primary to a man who has opposed everything and everyone in the Republican Party. Before the primary, you endorsed Dave Schoentag merely as interested taxpayers, because his ability and experience made him by far the best man for the job. His loss in the primary doesn't diminish his ability and experience in the least. And if you believe that the primary victory is more important than ability and experience, don't be surprised when members of our generation accuse your generation of hypocrisy. This is a part of "the system" that turns us off.

And how can Bartles have a claim on party loyalty as the primary winner when he said that if he lost, he'd run as an independent. Remember back in 1968 when Bartles lost two primaries (Republican and Conservative) to Emeel Betros? He didn't lift a finger to help Emeel in the general election.

Incidentally, if the primary is so important, why didn't you take the trouble to vote in it? Isn't it because you, like so many other Republicans, figured that there was no contest and Schoentag was a sure winner?

In any case, there comes a time when principles must be put ahead of clichés about party loyalty; we think this is the time. We still think a great deal of you, but your switching from Schoentag to Bartles just because of the primary has tarnished your halo considerably.

Teachers' View

Editor, The Freeman:

The Rondout Valley Teachers Association is extremely disturbed by the manner in which THE FREEMAN reported the news of last Tuesday's Board of Education meeting here: RVC Studies A Dilemma (THE FREEMAN, Oct. 6, 1971).

The article, submitted by a reporter who did not attend the meeting, implies that we have more teachers than we know what to do with and contains a number of inaccuracies, stated as fact, which we feel must not go unchallenged.

1. THE FREEMAN reported, "At Tuesday night's Board of Education meeting, Superintendent Robert Robertaccio explained the dilemma to the board and a large gathering of taxpayers." The fact is that of the approximately 30 citizens present, no more than 10 came. The rest were teachers and principals who attended in support of their Superintendent and the high level of quality in education which he is striving to maintain.

2. THE FREEMAN reports, "But, said Robertaccio, RVC enrollment figures fell far short of the number projected for this fall. As a result, too many teachers were hired." It is true that total enrollment this fall is less than projected. But at no time did the Superintendent make the statement attributed to him that "too many teachers were hired."

3. THE FREEMAN states, "The excess teachers, hired under contract for one year, have been deployed throughout the district." This is untrue and conjures up a terrifying picture. The 11 new teachers who are employed are working in the positions for which they were originally hired and needed. Every teacher in the district is carrying a full workload. This in turn is allowing the Rondout Valley Schools to continue their high standard of excellence in education. We, the teachers of Rondout Valley, maintain that we are far from overstaffed.

In conclusion, the Rondout Valley Teachers Association feels that the FREEMAN article was inaccurate, misleading, and harmful to our district. There is no dilemma.

For the Rondout Valley Teachers Association,
very truly yours,
PETER HENGSTENBERG,
President

Editor, The Freeman:

Enclosed please find a copy of a letter sent to the Board of Education, Onteora Central Schools, which we would like you to print in your "Letters to Editor" column. Board of Education, Onteora Central Schools, Mr. W. Jack Kahn, President, Tanglewood Road, West Hurley, New York.

Dear Mr. Kahn: Because the Bennett PTA has devoted itself to the cause of securing the best of living and learning environment for every child in the community, it must at this time show its concern for the overcrowded situation in some classrooms at Bennett School, particularly in the Kindergarten classes.

Our PTA members have urged us to make their feelings known to you, and express their concern over the immediate problem and the problems of growing class size in general in an environment meant to handle a much smaller enrollment.

We urge you to take whatever action can be taken to alleviate this problem. We, as parents, feel it impossible for a child to be brought to his full potential under these circumstances, and after all, is planning, and the wisdom of this not the whole idea behind Ontario's educational system? We realize also the problems that you face in handling such a situation, but also have the faith to know that with thought, planning, and the wisdom of your experience, that it can be remedied.

Sincerely,
R. R. Bennett PTA

Only Three Referendum Questions--But Costs High

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — New York voters will find only three referendum questions on the state election ballot next month, but they add up to many billions of dollars in government spending.

The question drawing the most attention — listed officially as Proposition Number One — carries a precise price tag. It seeks permission for the state to issue $2.5 billion in bonds to finance mass transportation projects.

It is followed by two proposed amendments to the State Constitution, each of which entails "open-end" spending. That is, the amounts depend on the use that the state and local governments make of them.

Amendment Number One is the so-called "community development article" of the Constitution. It would authorize the state and its communities to lend money to private enterprises for projects calculated to benefit the public — such as housing, urban renewal and civic, cultural and recreational facilities.

Amendment Number Two would carry forward the drive against water pollution. It would extend for another 10 years — until Dec. 31, 1982 — a special provision under which communities can exceed their legal debt limits in order to borrow money for sewage-disposal facilities.

The three questions compare with as many as 10 that have confronted the voters in some recent elections.

The sewage amendment has attracted no conspicuous opposition, probably because pure water — like apple pie and motherhood — falls into the realm of the sacrosanct. Few people want to speak against it.

Economy-minded citizens and organizations are openly wary, however, of the transportation and community-development articles, out of concern that they will lead to new rounds of tax increases.

And there is a strong school of thought in New York City that argues for rejection of the transportation bond issue unless the state promises a tie-in arrangement that will preserve the present 30-cent fare on the city's transit system.

Consequently, Gov. Rockefeller has taken to the hustings to campaign for "yes" votes on the two doubtful proposals — especially for the transportation bond issue.

Rockefeller desperately needs approval of the bond issue because he is counting on $300 million in proceeds to help finance his $7.9-billion state budget for the current fiscal year. He acknowledged last week that depressed revenue collections threaten to plunge the state $470 million into the red, and he indicated that state taxes might have to be increased again this year. Without approval of the bond issue, he would face a $770-million deficit, which would mean an even greater tax boost.

The governor also has been warning that rejection of the bond proposal will bring the state's highway-building program to a halt and curtail its ambitious program to expand and improve such mass-transit facilities as airports, bus lines, subways and railroads.

As might be expected, Rockefeller is enjoying strong support from the building industry and its unions, as well as such business organizations as the State Farm Bureau, which contends that the state should establish priorities for the various projects and build them one at a time, as cash becomes available.

While supporting the bond issue, the Empire Chamber of Commerce has taken a strong stand against the community development article. Its main reason is that the proposal would open the door for more publically financed housing projects, which the chamber long has opposed.

New York voters have rejected four housing proposals in the last decade, largely because of stiffening resistance upstate. Rockefeller argues that the community development article presents a vitally needed mechanism for rebuilding the state's cities, through a pooling of public and private capital.

The community development plan was conceived originally by the 1967 State Constitutional Convention. It was written into the remodeled Constitution that New York voters rejected that year. The legislature later signaled out the proposal for presentation to the voters on its own merits.

Prominent politicians in both the Republican and Democratic parties are supporting both the transportation and community-development proposals, although some Democrats are withholding endorsement of the bond issue because of the New York City transit situation.

New York's Mayor John V. Lindsay, for example, has been trying to pressure the state into a commitment to preserve the 30-cent transit fare. So far, Rockefeller has resisted such efforts on the ground of questionable legality.

This has inspired some Democrats, among them Manhattan's articulate Assemblyman Albert B. Blumenthal, to call for defeat of the bond issue. Blumenthal says it's the only bargaining lever that the city has in such circumstances.

Accordingly, Rockefeller and his political advisors are anticipating a reticent reaction in the city, while counting on heavy support upstate, where the highway-building issue realistically strikes home.

They had no trouble winning statewide approval of a similar $2.5-billion bond issue in 1967. But, aside from the New City problem, another negative factor has been introduced this time—the depressed national economy, carrying with it a presumed reluctance among personally distressed voters to endorse massive government borrowing ventures at this time.

Sources within the Rockefeller administration report that the bond issue will be approved. But the governor is not taking anything for granted. The polls have been wrong before.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, OCTOBER 13, 1971

WASHINGTON — Confidential letters in our hands show that top State Department officers connived to arrange the ouster of an anti-war diplomat at the same time they were feigning grave concern for his constitutional rights.

The ousted foreign service officer, Murray Smith III, has now been hastily reinstated because the department feared discovery of the secret letters and wished to avoid the scandal. But their 11th hour attempt to set things right cannot undo their deeds. Smith is a member of that supposedly elite corps of diplomacy, the Foreign Service, which is so demanding that men are fired merely for failing to be promoted. Such procedures are designed to assure that all Foreign Service officers will be "brilliant." But this has also produced a Foreign Service that is run like an Eastern prep school: stuffy, rigid and ridiculously snobbish.

Naturally, there was horror in the plush suite of the striped-pants set when Murray Smith signed an anti-war advertisement in the Washington Star in 1968. He was the only Foreign Service officer on the list. Smith's superiors threatened to use this against him by citing it in his promotion file, but the American Civil Liberties Union intervened to head this off. Nevertheless, Smith soon found himself assigned to a distant post in Iran, where he began to circulate an anti-war petition among the American community. The U.S. Ambassador, Douglas MacArthur II, nephew of the famed general, was apoplectic.

'Eyes Only' Message

He fired off a "Confidential Eyes Only" letter to Washington urging that Smith be shipped elsewhere. But Washington feared any such overt reprisal would get the ACLU after them again. After all, any citizen has a right to dissent among his fellow citizens.

So the Foreign Service's director general, John Burns, conferred with his boss, Deputy Under Secretary William Macomber. The saccharin Macomber had been polishing his image by boasting about the "505 reforms" he had instituted to bring the Foreign Service into the 20th Century.

Here's what Macomber told my associate Brit Hume about his attitude toward the Smith case: "Smith was not undetermining the President's policy abroad. His efforts were in-house, within the American community."

"I didn't want the fact that he disagreed with a certain policy to result in him being thrown out of the service. I didn't want people to judge him on that score."

But John Burns's reply to MacArthur, written with Macomber's approval, makes it clear that they were all eager to get Smith out of the Service for his anti-war activity, while making it appear that his ouster was for other reasons.

"In the case of Murray Smith, we would like to avoid the confrontation he apparently wants to provoke," the letter said. "We do not want to give Smith an opportunity to contend that his constitutional rights have been violated."

The letter noted that Smith had not been promoted for some time and "if he is not promoted by the selection boards which meet this fall, he will be forced to retire."

The letter includes specific recommendations as to how his performance report should be written to assure he was not promoted. This is highly improper because only Smith's immediate superiors are supposed to participate in writing the report.

Further, it said this: "Smith has not been told that he is ranked in the low 5 per cent of his class by the selection boards this year, nor should he be told because if he fails of promotion next year he will be out..."

It is established State Department policy to tell a man if he is in the bottom 5 per cent so that he will be warned to improve his performance. Yet Burns, with Macomber's approval, specifically directed that this policy be violated.

MacArthur's reply to Burns, also marked "Confidential Eyes Only," agreed to Washington's recommendations but contained some whining criticism of such things as Smith's wife's clothing. "She is a mini-mini wearer," the Ambassador declared petulantly.

These disclosures come at a bad time for Macomber and the bigwigs in the Foreign Service. They are already under fire for the grossly unfair treatment of another officer, Charles Thomas, who committed suicide after being kicked out.

Ranchers Rewarded
The same ranchers who sent gunmen on helicopter hunts for federally-protected golden eagles are grazing their cattle on federal land.

While Fish and Wildlife agents have been despairing over the eagle carnage by the ranchers, other branches of the Interior Department have been passing out permits to these ranchers to graze cattle at bargain rates.

Belatedly, the department is now considering "administrative action" against the permit holders who slay golden or bald eagles. The killings in Wyoming, Texas and elsewhere threaten the proud birds with extinction.

Three-Power Play

The improvement of relations between the United States and China is "a natural development," the Soviet Union declared in the first formal statement by a major Soviet government or party figure on the relaxation of Sino-American relations. But Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko warned it must not be aimed at his country.

Gromyko's estimate was part of his policy statement at the meeting of the United Nations General Assembly. While the Soviet accepted "in principle" the U.S.-China thaw, Gromyko said Moscow never countenanced policies directed against the "legitimate interests and security of the Soviet Union," that in the past, countries which had teamed up against others had led to situations of "international tension and sometimes war."

Apparently, the Soviet leaders still suspect that the purpose of President Nixon's initiative might be to join forces with Communist China in a power play against Moscow. It is in fact a part of the President's hope of bringing peace to the Pacific and enlisting China in that purpose. If in the process, the Soviet drive for expansion into Asia is thwarted, that is not to be a deterrent.

The United States halted Soviet encroachment in Europe with the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. Twenty-five years later, the Soviet is eager for East-West detente. Such a pact must not be one that frees her Western front so she can turn to the East. She is wary of American friendship for China because, if she does turn East, a Sino-U.S. accord could stop her.

The Vanishing Mule

On southern farms, the mule is being wished a fond farewell. Like its masters, it finds no place for itself as small farms disappear and mechanization takes over. The mule is getting grey and dying out, for it does not reproduce, being the offspring of a mare and a jackass.

In 1920, more than 250,000 mules were counted in North Carolina, for instance. Today, no more than 10,000 mules exist in that state. The number of farms in the 10 southern states has gone down from 2,162,000 to about 816,000 since 1920.

"Ole Jenny" has been cursed and loved and kicked and made the butt of jokes from its earliest days in this country. Songs have been written about the army mule and man's relationship with various of the ornery critters.

The twenty-mule team was the pride of the southwest in gold rush days.

The phrase "stubborn as a mule" indicates a strength of character in this humble beast that is sadly lacking in men today. An owner who abuses a mule's wisdom and courage may call it a "mean devil" but any small farm boy, who has ever sobbed out his troubles against its furry hide knows his pet to be an angel in disguise. Mules have killed rattlers and brought children through storms and floods.

Why doesn't some state create a mule farm to breed and perpetuate these faithful servants and protect them from extinction? They could tote carts and give pleasant rides both to children and elders, live out happy days, and be a fine tourist attraction.

THREE VIEWS — George Meany, president of the AFL and CIO, warned President Nixon not to fill the two vacancies on the Supreme Court with "reactionary nonentities." Justice William O. Douglas felt he had to instruct Nixon to consider "the mind and heart" of a potential justice; and Senator Hubert Humphrey sternly warned him to choose a man "dedicated to equal opportunity and equal justice." The assumption that the President of the United States does not know enough to consider all these things is an insult to those who voted for him.

WASHINGTON — One of the most extraordinary news developments has been the authentic reports that President Nixon is giving thoughtful consideration to the possible selection of Senator Robert C. Byrd, Democrat of West Virginia, as a nominee for Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States.

Many Republicans and Democrats in Congress who know Mr. Byrd are expressing themselves in favor of the choice. But the surprising thing is that although he holds a law degree, he has had no legal experience and is not a jurist who is familiar with court procedures.

Senator Byrd, however, obtained his law degree with honors at American University in Washington in 1963. He attended night school while serving in the Senate. He took a deep interest in Constitutional law. Sam Ervin, Jr., Democrat of North Carolina, who is chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Constitutional Rights and who had been a justice on the Supreme Court of North Carolina before he came to the Senate, says that Senator Byrd has a very sound "constitutional philosophy" and would make a fine appointment. He adds:

"Since he came to the Congress, he has been a very keen student of constitutional law, and I would think that he would welcome an opportunity to serve on the court."

The West Virginia Senator is known to his associates as a fair-minded individual. Strangely enough, this particular characteristic has often been subordinated to other factors in Supreme Court nominations, particularly to a background of legal experience, especially and expertness in dealing with constitutional problems.

Senator Byrd is being described by some of his friends as a "strict constructionist" — namely, as a man who, if chosen for the high court, would adhere closely to the language of the Constitution and not try to stretch it, as some justices allegedly have done in the past. In dealing with constitutional law, many justices have felt that, as times have changed, a modernization must be introduced. They seem to think that the phases of the Constitution are old-fashioned and need to be given a meaning which will cover present-day life.

The dialogue over "strict constructionism" isn't readily understood because the words have been somehow misconstrued as implying a kind of "conservatism," as opposed to the so-called "liberalism" of some judges. Yet anyone who does not look at Supreme Court decisions from a political point of view must come to the conclusion that many of them do not introduce a new philosophy or ideology but merely attempt to broaden the application of the Constitution which would normally be left to legislators to write in the form of amendments.

What the country needs today is even-minded men on the highest court of the land — justices who write their opinions without regard to "liberalism" or "conservatism" but with due consideration for the true meaning of the English language and what our forefathers intended when they wrote the provisions of the Constitution.

Many of the justices who have ruled on highly controversial questions have been reluctant to change them. This has been one of the traditional doctrines of the courts. But there are other justices who feel that such interpretations of the Constitution are not necessarily applicable to all kinds of circumstances that could arise in a country with a population as large as America has today.

Senator Byrd is known to his friend as a fair-minded individual who is likely to read the Constitution with a common sense approach and come up with interpretations that might or might not fit those of the past but which at least will reveal the desire of a fair mind to make a ruling that is deemed constructive.

Mr. Byrd has had considerable experience in public office and knows the problems of a state and its cities. He is familiar with the foreign policies that have been the subject of much debate throughout the land.

If the Senator is chosen as a justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, he will continue to study constitutional law as he has done in the past with the intention of learning every phase of our basic precepts. And when it comes to writing a decision or commenting on a decision of an associate in the court, he is the kind of man who will be frank about his views and who is not likely to worry about whether he is going to win political applause or disapproval.

It seems certain that Senator Byrd, if nominated, will have substantial Democratic as well as Republican support for confirmation.

A Walk Down 52nd Street

Anyone who knew New York at night remembers 52nd Street. By day, it was a sodden accumulation of brownstone fronts and basement bistros. At midnight, it winked its lights at tourists, who had a choice of Jack and Charlie's "21," Club 18, Leon and Eddie's, Jimmy Ryan's, the Club Ha-Ha, the Clover Club, the Chalet Suisse or Lou Richman's Dizzy Club.

It was, beyond dispute, the gayest assortment of clubs in one place in the world. The street stretched from 5th Avenue to Sixth — one city block of insane laughter. No patron at Leon and Eddie's arched a brow when a society playboy arrived on a horse, and rode it inside and around the dance floor, where it left its best regards. The unusual was expected on 52nd Street.

"21" is still alive and flourishing, but this is a classy dinner spot. When Jack White was running Club 18 across the street he had a fat waiter who used to come out of the kitchen lugging a garbage pail as patrons dug into Beef Stroganoff. "Where will I take the garbage?" he would holler. "Take it to 21," White yelled.

In ten minutes, the waiter was back with the garbage. "What happened?" "21" refused it. Toots Shor's was the last of the classy joints on 52nd, and it passed out early this year, something its owner claimed would never happen to him. I was fond of Jimmy Ryan's place, which had 20 bucks worth of old drapes hanging from the ceiling and a group of nuts called Eddie Condon and his band.

No one slept through that music. Eddie played a left-handed guitar and, as he said: "We have no music. Who can read it? I just say 'Sweet Sue' and we all take off down separate runways. It's anybody's blast." The music was so loud it kept the front door open and blew the epaulets off the doorman.

Abel Green, editor of "Variety," and a former song-plugger named Arnold Shaw, who wrote "The Street That Never Slept," (published by Coward, McCann and Geoghegan), can dim a man's eyes with laughter and tears recalling anecdotes about Count Basie, Billy Holiday, Fats Waller, Louis Prima, Jackie Gleason, Jackie Leonard, Henny Youngman and Joe Frisco. All of them were reputed to have started on 52nd Street, but most of them trained in burlesque houses. Norma Shearer, haughty queen of the screen, walked into a dump wearing a big round white hat. "Here's a movie star with white wall tires," the m.c. said, and she walked right out. Maxie Baer, the battler, sat at a table and Vince Curran yelled: "Stretch out on the floor. Nobody recognizes you."

Shaw remembers a night that Lillian and Dorothy Gish arrived with two male escorts in white ties and swallow-tails. "Look at those Park Avenue broads," Pat

Harrington yelled. "They brought their own waiters." Jack White, who was a Giant baseball fan, used to print the score on the front door of Club 18. When the Giants lost, he flipped the board to the other side. It said: "No game today."

He had played staid Philadelphia one time and flopped. The people did not appreciate Jack's crude humor. So he sometimes opened a little guessing contest by stating: "First prize is a week in Philadelphia." Jackie Gleason would yell: "What's second prize?" "Two weeks in Philadelphia."

Joe Frisco despised Milton Berle for stealing the material of other comics and the stutterer said: "When they m-made him they threw the shovel away." Once, when Joe Frisco entertained a girl in his hotel room, the manager phoned and said: "We'll have to charge you double, Mr. Frisco."

"Okay," Joe said. "S-s-send up another b-b-bible." Georgie

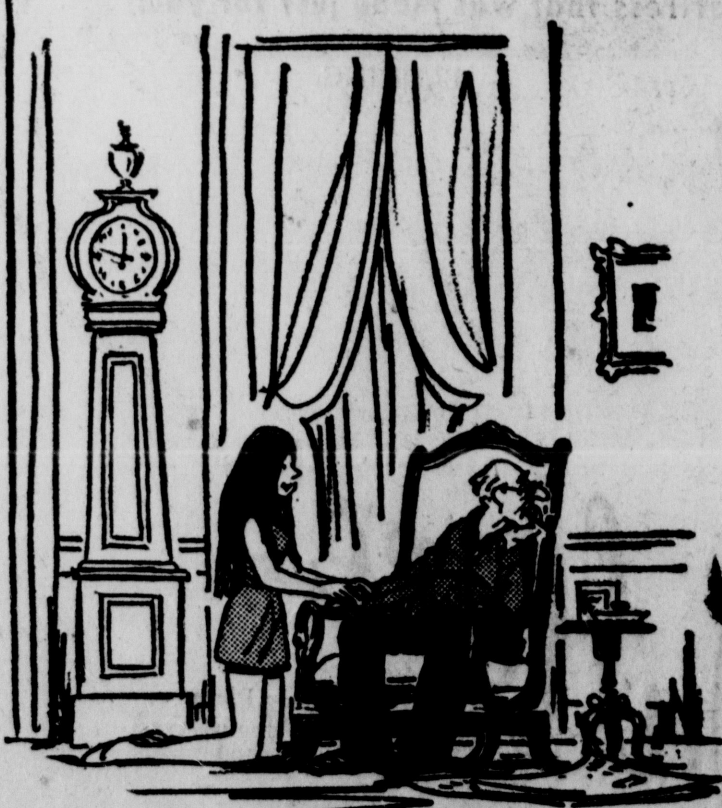

Jessel stood to tell some jokes and the m.c. said: "You didn't stop the show kid, but your sure slowed it down."

It was dangerous to go to a restroom at the Club 18 because the patron had to cross the bandstand. I tried to sneak by one night and White stopped the band, tipped his straw hat at me, and said: "Just mention my name. You'll get a good seat."

It was rowdy ridicule, but everyone, including patrons, got into the act. J. Edgar Hoover was introduced as "the inventor of the vacuum cleaner." A 3 a.m. cleaning woman stacked a bunch of brass cuspidors under a big picture of band leader Abe Lyman. A drunk, wandering out, said: "I'd never believe he won all those cups."

The street died slowly, over a period of years. Some of the great stars died earlier — Jack White in the arms of a great composer, Vincent Youmans. But what the heck. It had to be. Time is the greatest enemy of all. And time has patience...

Rotary President Brings Message of Optimism

By WADE BURKHART

NEW PALTZ — Optimism in the face of the grim appearance of current world events was the message brought to area Rotarians by Ernst G. Breitholtz, president of Rotary International, Tuesday night.

Breitholtz, from Kalmar, Sweden, addressed a group of about 750 from five states and 11 Rotary districts at Hasbrouck Hall on State University College, New Paltz.

Breitholtz said there seemed to be "little limit to the bad news spewed out" by the various media, but he found a counterbalance to the "bad news in the stable world of Rotary International."

He cited a Rotary motto of "Service Above Self" as a necessity for the bringing of peace to the world. He stressed "good will" as a force for world betterment.

The world is not "teetering on the edge of disaster," according to Breitholtz, but is rather "poised on the brink of unprecedented progress."

What the world needs is active, strong men who are broad-minded and filled with the feeling of service to set the world right, according to the head Rotarian.

He has travelled around the world as both a businessman, and this year, as the head of Rotary International, and he said his travels have shown him that most of the people in this world want peace, despite the fact that the current world is "armed to the teeth."

He said people today have "no killer instinct," and do not respond to calls for arms. But they do demand justice and equality.

The whole complex history of man's service to man can never be written, Breitholtz said, but that does not decrease the necessity of individual service.

He said few present that evening would ever find their names in history books, but their acts of goodwill, of service to men, would be a part of man's history.

The ability of the greatest of historical figures to accomplish good is based on the "unselfish services of others," he said.

He considered Rotary International to be a force for good in the world. With its more than 700,000 members in 149 countries, Rotary International can "influence history" by demonstrated and concerted goodwill.

He said the organization is "a force for good whose dynamics should not be underestimated or neglected."

All nations are developing, in the sense that all have far to go, he stated, but some nations have farther to go than others.

It is the task of the more developed nations to aid the less so. Many of the pains of the world are not "dying pains" but growing pains, he said, but we are all to close to the trees to see how the world's forest of commerce and industry is growing. He said the personal slogan he was spreading was "good J. Neumaier, himself a Rotarian, said Rotary District 721, with the Breitholtz should feel right at Highland - New Paltz, Poughkeepsie, because of its international Arlington, and Suffern Rotaries being the host clubs.

Breitholtz mentioned his recent reception by President Nixon at the White House; when asked by the President his opinion on the President's recent moves to strengthen the American economy, Breitholtz said he told the President as a businessman he felt it necessary for the U.S. to have a strong economy.

WOODSTOCK GOP — Republicans in Woodstock opened campaign headquarters recently on Tinker Street in Woodstock. Countywide Police Network Discussed in Rhinebeck

By TIM SCHUSTER

RHINEBECK

A long-range proposal to tie in with a countywide police network by Rhinebeck's police communications system was discussed with favorable remarks at Tuesday evening's Village Board meeting.

Police commissioner Francis Kinney reported having gone into the ramifications of the proposal with Undersheriff Dakin with an eye toward getting involved in the system which would approximate that presently used by the fire departments in Dutchess County.

While no commitments have been made, Kinney said that some federal aid may be forthcoming in the near future. The present system relies upon a lone dispatcher operating from her home via radio and only if snow accumulates at least 3".

"I hate to think of what might happen if one of our patrolmen ever needs aid in a hurry," said Kinney.

It was anticipated that the earliest any concrete proposals on the system might be of effect would be in the spring for when monies could be allocated and it would then be known what aid might be available.

The Board also decided to continue its policy of no facilities upon payment of a fee. Halloween curfew, although village and county police will be beefed up with fire police and the normal patrols of state police.

A radar unit has been in operation by village police for two weeks with satisfactory results, said Kinney. It will now be tried out by the Town of Rhinebeck.

A new overnight parking regulation was adopted for use from Nov. 15 to April 15. The 1-6 a.m. ban will be effective same spot for 24 hours it may be towed away at the owner's expense and an additional $25 fine levied.

Some ground rules have been laid for use of the new village hall. Groups using the facility for entertainment need deposit $50, refundable upon cleanup.

There will be no alcohol sold on the premises. Profit-oriented groups may use the kitchen while non-profit groups need not pay a fee.

A suggestion by resident Paul Gmeiner to either eliminate or reroute truck traffic from Montgomery Street was discussed by Board members with a resolve by Mayor Peter F. Sipperley to discuss some common solution with Town Supervisor William Allen.

A bid from Frazier Associates to reconstruct the water plant floor was granted. And if a car remains at the Rhinebeck district. Klose appealed his case to the Commissioner of Education and was denied. He told the Board this week that he was negotiating for the purchase of the Trinity to become involved in the politics of a campus town.

The Board President Dr. George Michael cited a difference in the case in that the Pais children were already in the system while the Klose child probably would not be until the spring. The matter was referred to the school attorney, William Walsh.

Nancy Chapman of Hunter registered Democratic and would like to see registration allowed for students in a college town.
Mike O'Hara of Hurley enrolled as a Republican and agrees, saying that students are away from home nine months out of 12.
Perhaps the biggest problem encountered while trying to register was the one Maryann Salerno of Palenville never did solve, not this year anyway.
Maryann went to both the Greene County and Ulster County Board of Elections to register. Each told her to register in the other place.
Such advice was no surprise for Maryann for as she explains, her dining room is in Ulster County and her bedroom is in Greene County!

Seven Nominated for County Chamber Board of Directors

Seven members of the Chamber of Commerce of Ulster County have been nominated for election to three-year terms on the Chamber's Board of Directors.

Seven vacancies on the Board are to be filled. Selected by the nominating committee of the Chamber of Commerce were Dr. William Cadden, John Carnright, Joseph Cornelske, Howard Fox, Sidney Musiker, James Rice and Charles Ronder.

Each man was nominated by another member of the Chamber of Commerce and submitted a petition signed by at least 15 other members. The election ballots were sent out to all Chamber members on Tuesday by Len Cane, Executive vice-president.

Dr. Cadden, a resident of Woodstock, is employed by IBM Kingston as Power Systems Manager. He joined IBM at Poughkeepsie in 1958. He received his B.S. and M.S. degrees from the University of Illinois and his Ph.D. degree

Newspapers Aid to Many Teachers

(by Paul R. Conrad, Executive Director, Allied Daily Newspapers)

You are a high school teacher responsible for bringing ecology, space science, or the culture and problems of the black man in America to your students. Textbooks take five years from authorship to classroom introduction, and each of these students rewrites itself in less time than that. Where do you go for up-to-date material?

Many teachers have found the answer on their front doorstep: The newspaper.

Not only does today's newspaper report on current, local pollution problems and the latest space activities, but it may also include background articles on over-population or a feature on some figure in American history who never managed to get into school textbooks—possibly because he was black.

In a time when "relevance" and immediacy are vital elements in education, the newspaper has been discovered by more and more teachers as a "living textbook." And it sparks pupil interest in more things than just moon shots. In Oakland, California, girls in a class of disadvantaged grade school pupils were given an imaginary $40 and challenged to feed an imaginary family of four for a week from newspaper advertising.

"Now maybe I can check the grocery ads for Mother when she goes shopping," one exclaimed at the end of the project.

Arithmetic and economics become real absorbing when a class tries its hand at imaginary investment in stocks over a semester, checking stock quotations daily in the newspaper and calculating gains or losses.

Virginia Riggs, a teacher in Odessa, Tex., has achieved nationwide recognition for her success in overcoming language problems of children from Spanish-American families, through the use of the newspaper.

Identifying parts of speech is at least a little more interesting when the sentences are from today's sports page instead of a lifeless workbook.

No one has yet catalogued all of the possible uses a newspaper can be put to in the classroom, but there are some impressive compilations. Organizations such as the American Newspaper Publishers Association Foundation, the Copley Newspapers, and the Oklahoma City Daily Oklahoman have assembled teaching guides with hundreds of tried and proven examples. Educators like Dr. John H. Haefner, professor of Social Studies Education at the University of Iowa, have prepared manuals that have been widely distributed at "Newspaper-in-the-Classroom" workshops conducted all over the U.S. and Canada. A few classroom teachers have taken to the lecture circuit, spending their summers appearing on these workshop programs co-sponsored by newspapers and various colleges and universities. One is Mrs. Hope Shackelford, Wichita, Kansas, who won an award from the National Education Association for her use of newspapers as a teaching tool. A day listening to her rapid-fire presentation sends teachers home brimming with ideas and enthusiasm.

Test indicate that youngsters learn faster when the newspaper is made a part of their daily classroom experience. In 1937 in

Lockhart, Texas, an experimental group of 86 potential drop-outs achieved a full year's advancement in a school year when exposed to newspapers in their class, as against an average growth of only four-tenths of a year during the previous school year. In Granite City, Illinois, 23 pupils, who started the 1965-66 school year with an average achievement level of 5 years and 3 months, tested out at 6 years and 9 months at the end of the year. Their teacher, Al Wilson, relied on the newspaper as his primary textbook in all subjects. Another class of 25, not exposed to the newspaper, started off the year with an average score of 5 years and 4 months, and tested out at 6 years and 5 months at year's end. The newspaper-exposed class had gained four months on the control group.

Determined to continue the American public as readers, many newspapers supply supplementary materials, current event tests and, most important, copies of their editions at reduced cost. The effort is not confined to dailies. Of 100 teachers who took part in a week-long session on the University of Washington campus last summer, 20 were sponsored by weekly publishers.

The interest and support is welcomed by school systems, administrators and individual teachers. Some schools work out complicated systems of passing copies of the newspaper from classroom to classroom to get maximum use. Teachers attending the workshops are usually sacrificing summer vacation time to do it. Despite the additional work (traditional textbook teaching is less demanding), the number of teachers using the newspaper grows every year.

Town Dem Candidates List Objectives

Saugerties

Area

News

SAUGERTIES Democratic candidates for town office in Saugerties announced, this week, a series of objectives for the upgrading of Saugerties town government.

Supervisor A. Michael Schovel, councilman candidate S. Morrow Decker and John "Bud" Smith, and candidate for superintendent of highways, Anthony Riozzi have called for a program of action for better government in Saugerties.

The Democratic Program calls for:

- The establishment of a recreation council with a full-time coordinator of recreation activities to make maximum use of all available facilities, including the schools, the Donlon Auditorium, and the park grounds. Included in the council's duties will be the management of a year round program of coordinated activities for youth and senior citizens.

- The office of superintendent of highways will be upgraded to superintendent of public works. A comprehensive plan will be established and maintained for the building and maintenance of town roads, buildings and parks utilizing all available manpower and equipment.

- The sound Democratic approach to fiscal policy which allowed reductions in the general tax for both 1971 and 1972 will be continued.
- The inauguration of sanitary treatment facilities as outlined in the "Comprehensive Study Report" will be vigorously supported.

- Two more full-time police-men will be added to the force. All police positions will be upgraded to induce maximum efficiency.
- Efforts to realize effective and comprehensive town planning will be strongly supported, as they have been consistently by Saugerties Democrats for the past 10 years.

- An attitude of awareness and responsiveness to the needs and desires of people will be maintained.
- A cooperative approach between the Village and Town governments will be established in order to address the growing narcotics problem, which we see as nearing crisis proportions.

Riozzi Wants Business-Like Approach

SAUGERTIES the present administration of our highway department in respect to the expenditure of town highway funds on privately owned roads. This is a complete violation of town law and a flagrant waste of our tax dollars. The highway superintendent should give a complete report to the town board each month of work completed and monies expended in the preceding month. This report should be recorded in the minutes of the town meeting." In line with these general views, Riozzi said, "I pledge myself to the following program to upgrade the office of superintendent of highways in the Town of Saugerties:

- A comprehensive plan will be established and maintained for the building and maintenance of roads, buildings and parks, and replacement of town roads

Necessary equipment will be purchased and preventative maintenance will be carried out according to this comprehensive plan.

- In fairness to all taxpayers in the township, the amount of taxes collected for road maintenance in a given area should be the minimum amount allocated for maintenance, repair of roads, buildings and parks, and replacement of town roads in that specific area, according to the superintendent of highways. Emergency situations should be corrected as soon as possible.

- There should be accountability by the superintendent of highways, not only to the town board, but also to the public in any area of the town where extremely bad conditions exist. This was promised by the incumbent two years ago but never carried out.
- A complete and systematic personal check of all town working roads and properties should be made by the superintendent of highways in cooperation with the town board.
- Individual complaints through years of administrative should be speedily investigated experience in this field.

Seamon Park ... Center of Mum Festival

SAUGERTIES From now until Oct. 25, the Village of Saugerties is commemorating its sixth annual Chrysanthemum Festival, centered at picturesque Seamon Park on Malden Avenue. The official starting date was Oct. 4. This period signifies the height of the colorful mum season in the "Garden Spot of the Hudson," as the park is often referred.

For many years, civic pride has always heightened at this time of year in Saugerties as Seamon Park assumes its most brilliant garb. In more recent years, this pride was stimulated even more by the organized efforts of many local clubs, organizations and individuals in the formal celebration of the Chrysanthemum Festival.

To the uninitiated, the Mum Festival can mean a peaceful stroll or short respite in the beauty and quietude of Seamon Park's paths and gardens. The more adventurous and inquisitive can inspect the recently-recovered remains of the crumbled grist mill along Sawyerkill Creek at the northern environs of the park.

As always, the focal point of the Festival is, quite naturally, Seamon Park. The park, fronting on Route 9W, Malden Avenue, is a rolling, hilly knoll, given to the village in 1909 by John Seamon, a prosperous, retired businessman. Seamon had previously acquired the property and improved it into a park-like setting. It was his wish to provide the villagers with "a park, a breathing place, open and free at all times to every person" as a repayment for the good fortune he enjoyed during the lifetime he spent in Saugerties. Since that time, the park has been maintained and enhanced through a joint effort of the Village of Saugerties and a highly-regarded Park Board. The results are apparent in the well-manicured lawns, trim flower beds, healthy shrubs, decorative fountains and cooling reflecting pools. From the park's highest vantage point, one can view a large part of the village, or catch a glimpse of the Hudson.

The park has a playground area for the youngsters, as well as a comfortable picnic area and fireplaces. Park benches are scattered throughout the area.

St. Mary of Snow Sets First PTA Meeting

SAUGERTIES St. Mary of the Snow PTA will hold the first meeting of the school year Oct. 17, at 7:30 p.m. in the school cafeteria, Cedar St., Saugerties.

After the business meeting Les Lombardi, English teacher and coach at John A. Coleman School will give a slide show.

Lombardi accompanied five Coleman students on an educational tour of England, France, Belgium and Switzerland during the summer of 1970. The group studied at Oxford and remained there for a month. In addition to slides on London and Oxford, he will show famous castles and palaces as Windsor, Blenheim and Warwick; slides of Coventry, Lady Godiva's hometown; the destruction from World War II and the amazing rebuilding of the entire city, also the famous Cathedral, Stratford-on-Avon and the birthplace of William Shakespeare. Interested persons are encouraged to attend.

concerning public apathy, women's involvement in politics and the importance of drug knowledge for both parents and children.

He said he is in favor of women on school boards and men participating in functions such as the PTA.

Mrs. James Chase was elected president of PTA due to the former president, Mrs. Joseph Weglarz's moving from the district. PTA officers, committee chairmen, teachers and teaching assistants were introduced by principal Patrick Buonfiglio.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. George Augustine and Mrs. Joseph Defino.

Oct. 27 will be the next meeting of Morse PTA in conjunction with the observance of American Education Week.

Space Station Set for '73 Debut

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI) — U.S. astronauts will be flying over more of the earth than ever before in the Skylab space station in 1973 and that raises the new possibility of an emergency ocean landing in subfreezing weather.

All of America's earth orbiting spacecraft in the past have flown over a broad band around the globe's midsection, going no farther north or south than 33 degree latitude. Their emergency splashdown areas were always in relatively warm waters.

But the Skylab will be launched into an orbit that will be more steeply angled to the equator. Its ground track will go to 50 degree latitude north and south, taking its astronauts as far north as Winnipeg, Canada, and as far south as the southernmost tip of South America.

The space station will go into the unusual orbit to give its earth survey sensors broader coverage of land and sea areas. Skylab will fly over more than 75 per cent of the surface of earth, over 80 per cent of its food producing areas and 90 per cent of its population.

Three three-man crews will be ferried to the Skylab over an eight month period by Apollo command ships. Each Apollo will remain linked to the station while it is occupied and then the astronauts will fly the Apollo back to earth.

"In several months of the year the area over which the spacecraft passes includes conditions considerably colder than heretofore experienced," the space agency said. "There is a remote possibility that emergency or major system malfunction during launch or orbit-

phases could force the spacecraft to land in these areas."

"A tremendous amount of data has to be reviewed," the agency said in a preliminary report. "However, it can be stated that the Skylab command module is a fit and sturdy vehicle in a cold environment, capable of supporting three men indefinitely."

Four command modules have been built for the Skylab project and the first scheduled launch May 1, 1973, has

IBM Transfers More Than 100 From Local Plant

By JON POWERS

KINGSTON
IBM Kingston has confirmed that more than 100 employees have been transferred from its local plant since July.

Those involved in the transfer have been relocated at other IBM facilities throughout the country.

IBM officials reported that the transfer of employees has been a gradual one, taking place during July, August and September.

A IBM spokesman said Tuesday that the firm's Data Processing Division encountered a shortage of Field Marketing Personnel during the summer months. Most of these were sales and marketing positions.

As a result, other IBM divisions were asked to identify qualified people who "might be interested in moving into a direct marketing (sales) job."

These people indicated an interest in the position, were interviewed, and those accepted were notified of the transfer.

An IBM spokesman said that, in many of the cases, the transfer involved a promotion or the possibility of a promotion.

It was emphasized that none of the 100 employees were laid off.

Further hirings at IBM Kingston to replace the 100 employees who have been transferred "are not anticipated," it was noted.

An IBM Kingston official told The Freeman that the program involving the transfer of employees is now nearing its conclusion and that a significant number of additional transfers is not expected.

With the gradual exodus of IBM employees from the Ulster County area in recent months, local real estate brokers have indicated that the housing situation here, nevertheless, has not been drastically affected.

Because slightly more than 100 families have left the area, there have been more homes available to buyers in the middle and higher priced brackets. But one real estate broker noted that many of those homes have since been purchased. The home vacancies created by the transfer of IBM employees alleviated the local housing shortage somewhat, it was pointed out.

ADDITION PENDING FOR TOWN HALL — What was termed a "much-needed" addition to the Red Hook Town Hall was officially announced Tuesday. The addition will be appended to the south (right) side of the building, formerly a private dwelling. (Freeman photo by Kruh).

Plans Are Unveiled in Red Hook For $35,000 Town Hall Addition

By TIM SCHUSTER

Plans for an estimated $35,000 addition to the Red Hook Town Hall were unveiled Tuesday night by architect Richard Crowley at the Board meeting. The plan, substantially the same as one defeated a town-wide referendum one year ago, provides primarily for the addition of a large meeting hall and reorientation of present space for better use.

Supervisor Warren Simmons noted previously that the plan will measure about 30' by 30', office, 32 Elizabeth Street. requires no voter approval, and the bond will be spread over a six or seven year period so be removed.

Crowley noted that bids will be due Nov. 5. The plan calls for separate bids on general construction, electricity, heating and ventilation, and plumbing. A new heating system is part of the proposal.

Initial bond payments have been put in the preliminary budget for the addition. The retired production manager from IBM, and one of his major qualifications, according to Simmons, is his quick adaptability and his spare time. Mary Hoffman was appointed

Weather Prognosticators

Almost All Agree--Bad Winter Ahead

United Press International
The weather prognosticators who rely on folk signs in foretelling a hard winter—woolier caterpillars, thicker cornhusks, smaller nuts, brighter fall foliage, and heavy August fogs—are almost to a man predicting a bad winter. Ever since man emerged as a hunter, he has looked for signs in nature that might indicate whether winter will be wild or mild. Even the age of science has failed to erode the old beliefs. And the computers that science has wrought are no more reliable than superstition. "We have used computers to find cycles in weather but without success," said a National Weather Service official in San Diego, Calif. "Computers!" sniffed Mrs. Helen Lane of Crab Orchard, Tenn., whose predictions of winter weather carry weight in her community. "Everybody knows heavy fogs in August are the best indicator of a big, bad winter—and that's what we're going to have this year."

Mrs. Lane counted 10 big fogs in August and she says that means 10 big snows later on. She also noted two other sinister signs—thicker husks than usual on sweet corn and numerous spider webs. Forester G. W. Valentine of Lufkin, Tex., says all reliable signs point to a cold, wet winter. He made reference to extra thick corn husks, thick hair on animals, and an odd shape to the moon on certain nights. "There are 101 reasons we should have a cold, wet winter but not as cold as last year—when I slipped up," he stated. Rancher Jimmy Potts of Post, Tex., believes prognostication is for the birds. Ducks are flying south earlier this year, and that means a bitter winter, he said. Weatherman Bob Lobertini for Station WLAC-TV in Nashville, Tenn., is a firm believer in rural yardsticks for predicting winter. He came up with a bushel of bad news—thick shells on acorns, woolier caterpillars, small walnuts and squirrels gathering them up "like crazy." The Old Farmer's Almanac, which claims to have been right in its winter weather predictions 78.5 per cent of the time, casts its lot with the others: "The winter will be cold, wet, and long over much of the nation." Publisher Rob Trowbridge of Dublin, N.H., said he uses cyclic charts based on the almanac's 180 years of weather watching plus "a little witchcraft" to make his predictions.

Appear. Before they disappear.

Legion Auxiliary in Tillson Plans Cosmetic, Jewelry Party

American Legion Auxiliary, Tillson Post 1219, finalized plans for an upcoming cosmetic and jewelry party at the group's recent regular monthly meeting. The party is slated for 7:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 20. The public is invited.

Mrs. Mildred Helmich, president, reported on "Children and Youth" program outline for the year, stressing five points of interest: drug abuse, immunization of children against rubella and smallpox, education of handicapped children, juvenile delinquency, venereal disease.

Mrs. Harold Theisse gave a report on the National Legislative Committee of the American Legion. The Legion will continue to support the Jobs for Veterans Program, reinforce their efforts on behalf of prisoners of war, continue to campaign against the spreading disease of drug addiction, and to assist returning Vietnam veterans in meeting their needs.

Prior to the meeting, members enjoyed a resume of Empire Girls State by Miss Bonnie Ludlow. Miss Ludlow attended Girls State in July and was sponsored by the Legion Auxiliary.

FALL FLARED COAT — From Fall Collection presented in Florence, Italy, designer Tiziani offers this coat with slightly flared skirt stopping just one and a half inches below the knee. It is done in red, white and black wool check, with wool fringe executed in same colors. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Mrs. Daniel Smiley, Speaker, for Little Gardens Club

Mrs. Daniel (Virginia) Smiley of Lake Mohonk was speaker at the October 7 meeting of the Little Gardens Club of Kingston which was held at Kingston Savings Bank, Bonanza Branch.

In conjunction with the program, "Golden Year, 1921-1971," Mrs. Smiley spoke of the club's theme, "Past, Present and Future."

augmenting her talk with sketches and slides on ecology. "The Inside of Outdoors."

Virginia Smiley is the wife of Daniel Smiley, co-owner and operator of the Mohonk Mountain House. She became interested in the study of natural history when she terminated her career as a singer, and is now coordinator of the nature programs at the Mountain House. She writes the weekly Mohonk Bulletin, and is editor of the monthly publication of the John Burroughs Natural History Society. Her articles and pictures have appeared in a number of national magazines, and in newspapers. Her first book, "Views from the Mountain, Responses to Nature and Man" came off the presses May 24.

Mrs. Smiley is a trustee of the Eastern New York Chapter of The Nature Conservancy, and is active in the preservation of the Delaware and Hudson Canal as an area for nature education. She is charged with the responsibility of creating nature trails for the Huguenot Historical Society on two of that organization's preserves.

Mrs. Smiley is also a trustee of the Mohonk Trust, a charitable and educational trust dedicated, among other goals, to preserving more than 5,000 acres of the Shawangunk Mountains, an area unique in the East. Her concern is to arouse in people a response to nature on a one-to-one basis, not as something beautiful which they can enjoy at will, but as a vital and constant part of every moment of their lives. With this in mind, she lectures extensively on natural history and conservation subjects, leads nature walks — and relaxes at the organ.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. George Swart, the vice president, Mrs. Everett Landers, presided at the meeting after which members and guests enjoyed a tea. Hostesses were Mrs. James Brett, Mrs. James Shelhorse and Miss Jane Austen.

Saugerties Club Marks 75th Anniversary

On Monday, Oct. 4, the Saugerties Monday Club celebrated its 75th Anniversary at a luncheon meeting held at Katsbaan Inn with many members, associate members and guests attending. Special favors, place cards, and floral decorations enhanced the event which had been prepared under the direction of Mrs. Dorance Baker and her committee. After a brief meeting conducted by Mrs. David Jones, president, Miss Jane Ziegler and Mrs. George Hildebrandt presented an appropriate skit in costume of yesteryear, in which main events and activities of the years 1896 to 1950 were relived. Joining the State Federation of Woman's Clubs in 1902, and the General Federation in 1916, the Saugerties Monday Club has been most influential through the years in pioneer efforts for civic activity at state and village levels.

Some of the Club's outstanding efforts have included: recommendations in 1923 to the state legislature for improvements in education for rural communities, better traffic legislation, and control of game killing; in 1924, a memorial Christmas tree for the village; in 1925, operating table facilities for Beer's Sanitarium; in 1925, a resolution to support the International Narcotic Council for the control of drug traffic; in 1926, a resolution to the village for improved streets, lighting, drainage, and woman representation for the Saugerties Village Board; in 1932, a substantial scholarship for worthy Saugerties High School students; in 1933, a moving picture censorship program; in 1937, a book donation program for Saugerties rural schools; and in both World War I and II, ambitious volunteer work for clothing and bandages for "descent soldiers" in Belgium and France, books for the armed forces, and blankets for stretchers. Members were also active as blood donors, and as volunteers for important civil defense posts.

CRUNCHY APPLE BAKE

An Apple Dessert to Remember

Beautiful and bountiful, apples are travelling to markets and are on colorful display at roadside stands. Here is a delicious sherry-flavored apple dessert with a crunchy topping covering the delicious sliced apples underneath. Add a spoonful or two of Creamy Wine Sauce — a heavenly ending for an autumn dinner!

Crunchy Apple Bake

Six medium size apples
One teaspoon cinnamon
One-fourth teaspoon nutmeg
One tablespoon sugar

Two tablespoons sherry
Two-thirds cup sugar
One cup flour
One teaspoon salt
One teaspoon baking powder
One egg, beaten
Creamy Wine Sauce

Pare apples; slice thin; arrange in shallow baking dish. Combine spices and one tablespoon sugar, sprinkle apples with the mixture. Sprinkle with sherry. Mix and sift two-thirds cup sugar, flour, salt and baking powder; add egg; mix in with a fork. Mixture will be crumbly. Sprinkle over apples. Bake at 400 degrees until apples are soft and top is brown (about 40 to 45 minutes). Serve warm with Creamy Wine Sauce. Makes six servings.

Creamy Wine Sauce

One-third cup butter or margarine
One cup confectioner's (powdered) sugar
Three tablespoons warm milk
Three tablespoons sherry

Cream butter to consistency of mayonnaise. Add sugar gradually, continuing to cream. Add milk and sherry very slowly, while beating constantly. Cook and stir over hot (not boiling) water to a creamy consistency.

APPLE-MINT SAUCE

A Tasty New Sauce for Lamb, Other Meats

Everyone thinks of applesauce with pork and mint sauce with lamb. How about combining apples and mint in a new and delicious sauce? It's truly flavorful and just one more example of the versatility of apples. And now that the new apple crop is on colorful display in City markets and roadside stands, why not try this delectable sauce the next time you serve lamb. It's a delightful ac-companion to other meats, too.

Apple-Mint Sauce

Eight large, tart apples
One and one-third cups water
Two cups sugar
One-third cup white vinegar
One and one-third cups finely chopped fresh mint
Cut apples in eighths; do not pare or core. Add water. Cover. Bring slowly to boil; reduce heat; simmer about 15 minutes or until apples are very soft. Do not drain. Put through food mill or fine sieve. Return to saucepan; add sugar and vinegar; bring to boil; boil gently, uncovered one-half hour. Add mint. Cook two minutes. Ladle into hot sterilized jars; seal. Makes about Two one-half pints.

Attends Piano Teachers Congress

Miss Jennie Hildebrandt of 155 Clinton Avenue attended the Piano Teachers' Congress Thursday, Oct. 7 in New York. "Concepts and Interpretations of Piano Production" was given by Josef Raieff, concert pianist and pedagogue.

Carol Shaffer, first place winner of the 1971 Mason and Hamlin Competition of the New York Federation of Music Clubs, played a program of Chopin and Beethoven.

The Fashion Scene

Barrettes Are Back
Barrettes are back bigger than ever. One firm making them in outside butterfly and bamboo patterns suggests they be worn not only to hold pony tails and the like in place on the head but also attach them to shoulder or neckline as jewelry.

Medieval Look
The medieval look for fall is achieved via a short leather tunic over ribbed tights, fittingly accessorized with a swashbuckling Maltese cross pendant. Button earrings and a hinged bracelet complete the picture.

Wrinkle Free

The new raincoats made of Dacron polyester double knit don't look like raincoats at all. They're perfect for going around the town rain or shine. They're wrinkle resistant and treated so they really are water repellent.

Long and Skinny

Sweaters are long and skinny, whether scooped-neck or V-neck revealing a colorful shirt beneath or turtle-necks striped in the latest fall fashions.

Hints From Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I keep my own little travel diary and find it great fun. When we go on trips I take all the picture postcards that we collect on the trip and put them in a regular loose-leaf notebook.

But this isn't all. On the map with the date, mileage, route taken and names of all who went on the trip.

We've found that most motels have picture postcards of their layout so we save these and mark, if possible, the room we stayed in.

I also list the towns we visit and the interesting sights in each. You think you will remember all this at the time, but, honestly, you won't. I can't tell you of the times I have referred to them since the trip.

I keep the data on several trips in one book — in fact as many as the book will hold. So far I have two full books.

Another little item that I keep track of is the money spent such as motel prices, food and gasoline costs.

I have this information on all our trips that we have taken since 1948.

It's so much fun to relive each trip over and over.

Mrs. Robert Shofner

Dear Heloise:

I use paper cup dispenser in the bathroom and we have an electric toothbrush so this left the empty glass-holder by the lavatory.

It's a couple of feet to the towel rack and water always seemed to be dripped on the floor.

I took a small hand towel and pulled it through the glass holder. It's idea — now there's a towel right there where it's needed when it's needed.

Look Here Homemaker: New Food Ideas

Phyllis W. Barlow, Extension Home Economist, would like to share with you some new ideas that have been developed.

There has been much concern lately in the United States and throughout the world about the millions of people who aren't getting the food they really need. As a result of this emphasis on nutrition, much research has been done in the area of foods and food processes.

Imagine a piece of cake that provides one-third of a child's recommended daily allowances for nutrition. ASTROFOOD, a fortified baked produce with creme filling, has been developed by the Food and Nutrition Service of U.S.D.A. and the ITT Baking Company. When combined with an eight ounce glass of milk it is equivalent to a complete breakfast of four ounces of orange juice, two slices of bacon, one egg, one pat of butter and one slice of bread. Just think of the advantages. ASTROFOOD would have in a school food distribution program — especially where the school has limited facilities.

ASTROFOOD requires no kitchen or cooking equipment or special personnel and can be served right at the school desk. Waste is at a minimum — ASTROFOOD can be stored at room temperature for several days and there is little waste of what is served. The kids like ASTROFOOD and eat it — they usually drink all of their milk too!

Little Miss Muffet ate her curds and whey, but more than a billion pounds of low-cost, highly nutritious cheese whey solids are discarded in the United States every year. Now this waste product is being experimented with to produce nutritious beverages.

Some Examples are: Whey and soy flour combined with citrus flavoring can be made as liquid concentrate or as a powder.

Whey and cream combined with chocolate or fruit flavoring make a concentrate that can be diluted with water for drinking.

Whey, when combined with an iron compound, form a powder that can be used to upgrade the nutritive value of dairy products and other foods. Testing is now being done to determine the acceptability of milk and other foods fortified with the iron protein powder. Also, experiments are being done to ensure that nutrients in this form are utilized by the body and that regulations for food additives are met.

More potential food sources have been thought of — some sound pretty unlikely to us, but who knows.

Food can be synthesized from basic raw materials such as petroleum. Proteins from grass, from microorganisms and by cell culture are also possible.

A high protein product from milk curd — fried in deep fat. "It could be canned in a meat flavored gravy or it could be used for snacks, hors d'oeuvres, or confections. The texture as well as flavor can be modified to suit individual tastes."

The large scale production of synthetic food, however, is many years in the future. Conventional agriculture must continue to be the foundation for human nutrition.

New foods and related products are being developed every day. Watch your market shelf for new ideas and don't be afraid to try something that is new to you. If you do have questions, please feel free to call our office.

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

© 1971 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

Thanks—But She Won't Run for President

DEAR ABBY: I urge you to run for the office of President of the United States.

You have everything a good President needs. Intelligence, common sense, courage, and a real understanding of people's problems. Furthermore, you're uncorrupted and fair minded.

I feel certain that with Abigail Van Buren as our President, we would have peace and friendly relations with our foreign neighbors.

If you would become a candidate, I can promise you the support of millions. And campaign funds would be the least of your worries. How about it?

"ABBY FOR PRESIDENT" DEAR "ABBY FOR": Thanks, but no thanks. Not that I'm reluctant to serve my country. But I'm not so sure how my husband would feel about being "First Lady."

DEAR ABBY: I am 46 years old. I was a widow for 5 years before I married this man who had been divorced for two years. This man is a perfect husband in every way — except one.

He has two children by his first wife, 6 and 11, and they live with their mother, but they spend weekends with us very often and I love having them. Now my problem:

My husband refuses to tell his wife and children that he is married to me. This hurts me deeply. They think I am just the lady he lives with. This makes me feel so cheap. When his children come to spend weekends with us they like it so much they hate to go home.

Abby, why does my husband want to keep our marriage a secret from his children? I just can't look those kids in the face anymore.

DEAR MARRIED: Something doesn't add up here. Tell your husband to quit playing games — that you are not going to permit him to make a less than honest woman of you. Insist that he introduce you as his wife. And make it retroactive!

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have arranged to adopt a child which will be born in three months. The natural mother is young and unwed and she lives in another city. I have never met her and I do not even want to meet her. She is distantly related to my husband, but he's never met her either. This will be a private adoption — not thru an agency.

My husband and I were invited to a family wedding in the city where this unwed mother-to-be lives, and we were told that she will be at the wedding. Abby, I can't explain why, but I simply do not want to ever meet or know this girl. After declining the invitation (I gave no reason), I received a telephone call from my husband's cousin, begging us to come.

My husband says he'll do whatever I wish, but he can't understand my reasoning. Can you? I'll do whatever you say.

BETTER STRANGERS DEAR BETTER: I can understand your reasoning. Feeling as you do, stay home.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Alive and Kicking Pirates Choose Walker

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Pirates, who weren't supposed to have much pitching, were suddenly alive and kicking in the World Series today on the strength of a masterful three-hit job by fastballer Steve Blass.

And they were ready to shoot with southpaw Luke Walker, a Texan who makes a habit of winning a lot of games late in the year, tonight in the fourth game of the World Series — the first-ever night game in Series history — against the Baltimore Orioles.

Righthander Pat Dobson (20-8), the Orioles' fourth 20-game winner, was set to oppose Walker (10-8) in the 8:15 p.m. EDT game at Three Rivers Stadium.

"Steve Blass," signed Orioles Manager Earl Weaver when asked to explain the Pirates' 5-1 game by staying in the Pirates' locker room in Baltimore and would bunt — any more than it was watching the first two games occurred to Robertson himself.

"Blass pitched a helluva game," agreed Orioles Frank Robinson, who got two of "I never saw the bunt sign." Baltimore's three hits and confessed the red-haired deprived Blass of a shutout Robertson, who was the Pirates' slugging hero of the National League playoffs last week with four home runs. "I hadn't gotten the bunt sign all year, and I wasn't looking for it."

What the Orioles didn't know was that Blass and Bob Robertson, whose three-run homer put the game on ice for it.

Robertson was given the "bunt" sign in the seventh inning — but he missed seeing it because, with two on and none out, he swung away, hitting the out, he noticed Orioles third baseman Brooks Robinson was playing very deep.

Blass prepared for this viciously never occurred to him. Blass was staying in the Pirates' locker room in Baltimore and would bunt — any more than it was watching the first two games occurred to Robertson himself.

Stargell deadpanned later. "Some guys can spend a whole career in baseball and never bunt home three runs." Murtaugh said that "under these conditions" he wouldn't fine Robertson for his boner. As for Blass, the wisecracking fastballer told the story of the missing notes on himself. He said he watched the games on TV, rather than go out in the dugout, "because with the picture from behind the plate, you can tell better about the pitches."

But, he said, the missing notes didn't hurt him much because "to tell you the truth, those first two games left me kinda confused."

In the first game the Orioles hit homers, and in the second they hit singles all over the place," he said. "It didn't help much."

Blass, who was knocked out of the box twice by the San Francisco Giants in the National League playoffs, fanned eight Orioles and walked only two. He didn't give up a hit until Brooks Robinson singled in the fifth, and the only other hits were Frank Robinson's homer in the seventh and single in the ninth.

"I tried to throw two fast sliders in a row past Frank," said Blass. "You can see why he gets paid four times as much as me."

"Was it my best game of the year? Would you believe the best of my life?"

Blass said he threw 85 percent fastballs and Weaver commented, "I coached him briefly in the minor leagues, I think in the instructional league, and he was every bit as fast yesterday as he was then, and now he has control."

Walker, who will be opposed by Baltimore's Pat Dobson, the fourth Oriole 20-game winner, is a fellow who had a 5-0 record for the last month of the 1970 season, got off to a bad start this year when he lost a number of close games, and then came back with another fine September in which he was 4-0.

Walker is the young man who was highly praised but seldom used by Harry Walker when Walker managed the Pirates, and so wrote home to his mother in Texas. "I am alive and well — but not pitching — in Pittsburgh."

Murtaugh said he will follow Walker with Nelson Briles in Thursday's fifth game, rather than come back just yet with Dock Ellis, the Pirates' '94 game winner who lost the opening game.

"Ellis is not now the pitcher he was during the season," explained Murtaugh.

All of a sudden, thanks to Blass, Murtaugh is a man who may have some pitching to choose from, after all.

Top Dynasty: Yanks, Birds?

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Old Casey Stengel snapped, Earl Weaver crackled and ex-Yankee Phil Rizzuto popped today in a World Series feud over baseball dynasties.

Up for debate: How does the current Baltimore team, winner of more than 100 games for the third year in a row and playing in its third consecutive World Series, compare with the great Yankee machines of the past?

Weaver, manager of the Orioles, lit the fuse when he said — with understandable pride — that his present team is the best baseball team he ever saw.

Under further prodding, he added, "Phil Rizzuto couldn't make this team."

This jabbed the sensitive nerves of the former Yankee shortstop, as well as Stengel, the grizzled old man from Oakland who led the Yankees to seven world championships in the 1940s and 1950s.

"What does that man know about it?" the snow-haired octogenarian barked. "He never played in the major leagues."

Defending the 1960 team, the last of his 10 American League winners, who lost to the Pittsburgh Pirates on a seventh game home run by Bill Mazeroski, Stengel said: "The Pirates were in their prime then. (Roberto) Clemente was a young man. Now he's 11 years older. This is not the same Pittsburgh team."

Besides we would have won the World Series in 1960 if I had pitched Whitey Ford in the first game instead of Art Ditmar. Ford beat 'em twice and would have beaten 'em three times if it hadn't been for my stupidity."

Rizzuto, who played shortstop on Stengel's earlier teams, also was stung by Weaver's remarks and was quoted as responding: "What could Weaver have known about me? I played in 1941. Weaver was 6 years old at that time."

"That show's you what a smart guy Rizzuto is," Weaver quipped.

"I wasn't 6. I was 11. I was born in 1930. Subtract 1930 from 1941 and you get 11. Any schoolboy could tell you that. But not Rizzuto."

"I was sincere when I said that I think this Baltimore team is the best I ever saw. And I honestly think Mark Belanger is a better shortstop than Rizzuto was."

"Rizzuto has been on my back for the last four years. I don't know why. He second-guesses every move I make."

"When I make a move, he'll say, 'What is this man doing? He'll never stay in the major leagues with moves like that.' But here I am."

Rizzuto is now a broadcaster of New York Yankee games. Stengel is an Oakland banker and financier.

"If Weaver's team is so good, why didn't they beat the Mets two years ago?" Stengel added.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Odds maker Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder said Tuesday Baltimore was a 6 to 5 favorite to win the fourth game of the World Series and a 3 to 1 favorite to become world champions.

The odds are 10 to 1 against Pittsburgh winning the next three games in a row and 12 to 1 against Baltimore winning the next two in a row, said the Las Vegas oddsmaker.

Middletown to Offer Kingston Tough Test

By IRA FUSFELD

KINGSTON
Kingston High School returns to the gridiron wars Saturday hoping that the effects of one week layoff won't put any rust marks on its well-oiled offensive and defensive units.

The Maroons greet their rivals from Middletown for a 1:30 p.m. encounter in Dietz Stadium.

"We're in good shape," declared Coach Tony Badalato of the 18th ranked KHS squad. "I don't think the layoff hurt us because we got our injured players, Tommy Turco and Rich Elmendorf, ready. Tim Pillsworth did a good job while Turco was out and now we have depth."

The Middies figure to be Kingston's toughest test to date, but so far the Maroons, though seemingly faced with more difficult teams each week, have been winning by bigger and bigger margins.

Kingston's offense has racked up 124 points (21 vs. Poughkeepsie, 45 vs. Linton, and 58 vs. Troy) and the defense has held the opposition to a big fat zero.

Middletown enters the game on the heels of a three-game winning streak following an opening game upset defeat at the hands of Roosevelt of Hyde Park.

The Middies' latest triumph was a 25-6 shellacking of Mamaroneck, but after the contest Middletown Coach Dick Wolslayer was quoted as being disappointed with his team's effort since it had to rely on the passing attack.

"We've been erratic," Wolslayer said when asked how his team has been progressing. "We'll be working on our running and making a few changes for Kingston."

"Kingston is very tough," Wolslayer went on. "they've come a long way from last year. When we played them last year (Middletown won, 32-6) they were inexperienced. They're obviously putting it all together now."

The defense has been Middletown's biggest weapon according to both Wolslayer and Badalato.

"Our defense has kept us in the games," said the Middle mentor, "creating fumbles and the like."

"Defense is definitely their strong point," concurred Badalato. "You can see that the whole team works as a group."

Kingston fans, however, don't have to be told how valuable a defense can be, what with the Maroons having been set up for scores time and time again by that unit.

Badalato also doesn't take Middletown's running lightly.

"They're a good aggressive ball club with an excellent passing attack and good running."

Kingston will be heavy favorite going into the game and Badalato was asked if his team, which had the problem of not being confident when the season started, is now a bit too cocky.

"I don't think so," he replied, "they want to win this game, it means a lot to them."

EXTRA POINTS—The latest

New York State Sportswriters Association poll will be released tomorrow morning and Kingston is expected to suffer from its week off by being dropped a notch . . . The new Dietz Stadium scoreboard is in place and will be ready for Saturday's game . . . Middle quarterback Larry Lubkert is said to have called 95 per cent of the game against Mamaroneck. "I think I called one play," said his coach, "and we lost two yards on it."

KHS Booters Lose Again

WAPPINGERS FALLS
Attitude, that intangible in sports necessary for success, is becoming a problem for Kingston High School's soccer team.

"You've got to be willing to pay a price to play soccer," a disturbed Coach John Hunter said after his team was beaten by Ketcham, 4-3, here Tuesday. "Some of these kids are concentrating too much on other extracurricular activities. You've got to be dedicated to a sport. I can only practice with them five days a week. Our players were actually out of condition against Ketcham and their's were not and that's one of the big reasons we lost."

"We haven't won a soccer game in two weeks, we're 3-3 on the season, and if they want to win, their dedication has got to come through."

Hunter's words sounded strong it was because he was annoyed at the recent showing of his squad. Against Ketcham, the Maroons led 2-1 at halftime but fell apart in the third quarter as the home team scored three times to pull away, and conditioning played a big part in the KHS collapse.

Steve Davis opened the scoring for Kingston at 10:43 of the first quarter as he converted a Pete Fowler pass from 20 yards out.

Ketcham's Ken Miller made it 1-1 when he took a cross and booted it in at 11:17 of the second, but KHS went back in front as Charlie Barton, with an assist from John Ivankovic at 13:40, tallied from in close.

However Miller scored again in the third and Art Wilkert added pair to boost Ketcham ahead. Each time the winners moved swiftly through a porous KHS defense.

The game was played on a muddy field and both teams were hurt by poor footing.

"We have to fix that defense or Coleman (KHS' next opponent) and every other team is going to score on us," said Hunter.

The Kingston-Coleman match is set for Thursday at 4 p.m. in Loughran Park.

The lineup:
Kingston (3): Seeger, Sauer, Olsen, St. John, Davis, Fowler, Morozov, Bosch, Corman, Robinson, Barton.
GOAL: RFB, LFB, RHB, LHB, MOR, OR, F, ALM, C, L, OL.

Scoring by Periods
KHS: Davis (Fowler), 10:43, 1st; Barton, 13:40, 2nd; Bosch, 12:09, 4th.
Ketcham: Miller, 11:17, 2nd; Miller, 6:13, 3rd; Wilkert, 7:56, 3rd; Wilkert, 13:55, 3rd.

Shots: KHS 10, Ketcham 12; Corner Kicks: KHS 3, Ketcham 3; Saves: KHS 10, Ketcham 5.

Boosters Meet

The Kingston High School football booster club will hold its weekly meeting Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Vocational Building Room 417. Banquet plans will be formulated.

Barents Records First 300 Game

By STEVE KANE

KINGSTON Anybody who was lucky enough to be at the Saugerties Bowlers' Club Sunday night shared in the biggest thrill a bowler can imagine. Bruce Barents thundered his way to a perfect 300 game in Bowlers' Club Major League competition.

PERRY MONROE
(The Leader)

Perry 1st, But Pais Is Moving

KINGSTON Freshman fullback Joe Pais of Red Hook tallied 20 points in his team's win over New Paltz Saturday to move into second place in the Ulster County Athletic League football scoring race.

But defending champion Perry Monroe of Highland crossed the goal line two more times to boost his league leading total to 42 points, seven better than Pais. John Barrington of Highland retained his third spot with 32 points. Pete Mann of Liberty is fourth with 30. Joe Williams of New Paltz dropped to fifth with 26 and Bill Reid of Red Hook moved into sixth with 24.

Ron Monroe, the other half of Highland's powerful family, is in the seventh position with 22 markers. Joe Phelan and John Langling of Ontario, Ken Papini of Pine Bush, and Mark Walther of Walkill have 18 points apiece. George Clark of New Paltz is 12th with 16 points.

Dan Theberge of Red Hook and Steve Foster of Liberty share the lead in touchdown passes with three each.

The scoring leaders:

Onteora JV Stops Highland

BOICEVILLE The Onteora Junior Varsity football team evened its record to 2-2 and handed Highland's Little Blue its first defeat Friday by a score of 12-6.

Onteora's Jim Van Steenberg tallied from four yards out in the second quarter, and Gary DeGraff went 55 yards a few minutes later to offset Highland's touchdown kickoff return. Highland had been victorious in their first three outings.

Rockets Drop Three

HOUSTON (AP) — Three players were placed on waivers Tuesday by the Houston Rockets of the National Basketball Association.

The players are John Trapp, Bernie Williams and Rick Katherman. Trapp, a 6-7 forward from Nevada Southern, is a three-year veteran. Williams is a 6-3 guard from LaSalle who has two years in the pros and Katherman is a 6-7 rookie forward from Duke.

Joining Barons

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Forward Buster Harvey and defenseman Fred Barrett, the top two amateur draft choices of Minnesota last year, were expected to join the Cleveland Barons tonight for their American Hockey League home opener against Cincinnati.

It was the first flawless effort, 187 average in league play, but he admits to being a "slow starter." Last season his mark was 199—not bad in any league. His previous single game high was 274 which he rolled in last season's year end tournament. Bruce also bowls in a father-son league with his father-in-law. "I don't know if I could do it again," Bruce admits, "but this one sure was a big thrill." Barents resides in Kingston with his wife Margaret and their 19-month-old daughter, Ann Marie.

Saturns, Titans JFL Winners

KINGSTON In a Kingston Junior Football League doubleheader last Friday night, the Saturns ended a two game losing streak with a 20-0 win and the Titans made it three consecutive victories by blanking their opponents under the lights at Dietz Stadium. Saturn quarterback Mike McWeeney hooked up with receiver Dave Schleede for a 40 yard touchdown strike in the second period to give his team the first half lead.

After teammate Kevin Houghaling had returned an Apollo punt 50 yards to paydirt, the McWeeney-Schleede combination went back to work. This time it was good for 25 yards and a score, and after Schleede's second conversion of the night it was 20-0.

The win was the Saturn's first for the season and lifted them out of last place, now solely occupied by the Apollos.

In the second game the Titans continued to roll over their opponents and chalked up a 13-0 victory over the Agenas.

But it wasn't all that easy. A tough Agena defense and crucial penalties stymied the victors throughout a scoreless first half. In the third quarter John Burris finally broke loose for a big gain of 35 yards, and Rich Alecca took it the remaining 20 all in one chunk for the TD.

The conversion was foiled, and that might have been significant, but Burris got some insurance with a touchdown aerial to Steve Greico in the final stanza to ice the win.

Chris Nordstrom made the PAT to close the scoring.

This Friday night the Titans will put their perfect record on the line against the Apollos, while the Saturns meet the Geminis, the league's other unbeaten team, in the nightcap.

The Agenas will face the Mercurys in the Sunday afternoon contest.

A showdown for the league title is shaping up for Friday, Oct. 22 when the Geminis will meet the Titans.

Savard Still Out

MONTREAL (UPI) — Serge Savard, the injury-prone defenseman of the Montreal Canadiens, will be lost to the Stanley Cup champions for at least several more months.

Dr. Ted Percy, the orthopedic surgeon who operated on Savard's leg last season, told the Canadiens that Savard still hadn't recovered sufficiently from his second leg break in as many years.

Comets Boot Coleman, 6-2

FALLSBURG Steve Gilmore scored four goals as Fallsburg High School whipped visiting Coleman, 6-2, in varsity soccer Tuesday.

The Comet ace hit the net at 4:50 of the second period after his team had taken a 2-1 lead and then added another tally in the same stanza, one in the third, and a fourth in the final quarter.

Fred Jackson and Ron Jancko were the other Fallsburg scorers.

The Statesmen were down 2-0 when Nick Walker concerted Marc Weber's perfect centering pass, but Gilmore's first goal came 17 seconds after the Coleman marker and put the game out of reach.

Walker scored again in the final period on passes from Weber and Charlie Greco.

Coleman took 15 shots on goal with Fallsburg goalie Charlie Carter making seven saves. The Statesmen's Jim Cranston stopped 14 shots. The Comets took 20.

"This was the poorest defensive game we've played," said losing Coach Ron Valle.

whose team is now 2-4. "The forward line cannot score if they don't have the ball and the fullbacks were not getting the ball upfield. Marc Weber well when they had the ball. Both of them passed very nicely and Nick Walker played very well and it resulted in two scores."

The Coleman II goes to Loughran Park on Thursday to meet meet Kingston.

Dennis Bivins, filling in the 2, 3 and 4 slots, anchored the victory for Liberty.

Onteora's top harrier, John Stay, missed this meet and will sit out the rest of the season due to an injury. This places heavy burden on Schussler whose hard running will have to anchor the team.

Schussler's not a speedster, but goes on guts, according to his coach, Bernie Stahl.

Memphis Signs Larry Cannon

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) —

The American Basketball Association Memphis Pros Tuesday night announced the signing of Denver Rockets guard Larry Cannon to a multi-year contract, triggering an immediate controversy.

ABA Commissioner Jack Dolph said an investigation of the actions of the Memphis club will be made.

Cannon and his agent, Steve Arnold, contend that Cannon is a free agent because the Denver team breached a contract signed when Cannon turned pro two years ago.

Dolph, however, said the ABA has not recognized the signing of Cannon by Memphis, "and he cannot play for Memphis until an investigation is made."

Alex Hannum, president, general manager and coach of the Rockets, said the Denver club views its contract with Cannon as valid and will go to court if necessary.

Pros general manager Charles Cavagnaro said, "We examined Cannon's contract and we have every reason to believe he is a free agent."

That's why we signed him," Cannon, 24, reportedly will receive $200,000 over a three-year period with the Pros. The 6-foot-5 LaSalle graduate was the sixth leading scorer in the ABA last year.

Rocky Sees Good Chance Of Transit Bond Passage

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller, citing support from most of New York's congressional delegation, says his $2.5-billion state transportation bond issue has a good chance of being approved by voters in November.

The Republican governor spoke to newsmen here after meeting with the state's congressmen.

He said the proposed bond issue could lead to a construction program totalling $5.5 billion when matching federal funds of $2.6 billion and $400 million in local funds were figured in. The money would continue a 1967 bond issue for similar construction.

Rockefeller said he emphasized at the meeting the need for employment opportunities and economic benefits throughout the state, as well as the adverse effects he felt a rejection of the bond issue would have.

If the bond issue were rejected, he said, the state's mass transit and road-construction programs would be halted, the state deficit would be increased and there would have to be reductions in aid to schools and localities.

Questioned about opposition to the proposal by some conservatives, he said the bond issue was endorsed by U.S. Sen. James L. Buckley of New York, "who they elected."

GENERAL TENDENCIES: MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Much care must be taken in the evening. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You are anxious to make greater progress in your career. This is best done by impressing high-ups. Be sure to pay an important bill. Don't leave yourself open for trouble. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You can put those fine ideas in operation provided you go to bigwigs and get their approval. Don't frown so much and you win others over easily. Show kindness to friends. AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Pay your bills and take care of other responsibilities with haste so that you can reap the benefits. Once you get work done, cooperate with what your mate has to say. Stop arguing. PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A big argument with an associate could result if you are too forceful with your ideas. Go through with agreements you have made and show your finest side to the public in general. IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she should learn that the finest way to get along with others is to look at their good qualities instead of their bad ones and show thoughtfulness to others. Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

NICE PARTY: (Q.) I went to a party last night and really had fun. I went with my date and my best girl friend and her steady.

The people where the party was have a swimming pool. We all went swimming. The party was chaperoned. There was no beer—just a clean party.

There is going to be another party next week. It will be the same kind of party but at a different place. I really want to go. But my mother says she doesn't want me to make it a habit.

I am tempted to stay the night with my friend and go dishonest. But I just couldn't lie even if I'm not allowed to go. How can I get her to let me? She's not easy to talk to.—14½ in Delaware.

(A.) You are right to be honest. In the long run you won't lose by telling the truth.

Tell your mother the truth this time—how nice a party it was, how it was chaperoned, how much you would like to go again.

Most parents want their teen-agers to go to really nice parties. I believe your mother wants the same for you.

TEASED: (Q.) My three brothers are older than I am and they all tease me. Not just about my hair styles and my make-up and my clothes and the way I walk and other stuff—but about my boy friend.—No Peace in Pennsylvania.

(A.) Your brothers' teasing is a way they have of telling you they are interested in you and they like you. Being boys, they would be embarrassed to tell their little sister that they love her, so they tell you by teasing you.

Don't mention this to them, but remember it. Later in life, when you can't be so close to them, you will cherish the memory of the attention they are giving you today.

Monkeys and Men Delightful

NEW YORK (AP) — When CBS' National Geographic series started several seasons back, one of its most fascinating programs showed scientist Jane Goodall's work in Africa studying chimpanzees. A return visit to the British woman's open air laboratory was the highlight of National Geographic's "Monkeys, Apes and Men" on Tuesday night. Miss Goodall's chimps starred this time in a rather unpleasant scene when they were given a tubful of bananas.

The biggest, toughest chimps grabbed as many as they could. Another made a pile of bananas and guarded it furiously. Stronger chimps made the weaker ones beg for the fruit.

Human reactions in primates, apes and monkeys were examined throughout the hour. It concentrated on some studies seeking the origins of man and clues about human behavior.

A California scientist, Diane Fossey, was shown as she nibbled leaves in the company of some Central African gorillas. She has lived with them four years, gained their confidence and has found that, in spite of their forbidding appearance, they are really shy, timid creatures—and strictly vegetarians.

Baboons were shown to have a definite social structure, with dominant males the warriors of the troop.

There was film showing tests in a Wisconsin laboratory on rhesus monkeys which are expected to be helpful in learning more about child behavior. One researcher has found, for instance, that young monkeys reared in comfortable family situations grow up to be better adjusted and self-confident adults.

The report was an especially delightful hour.

ABC's "Movie of the Week" Tuesday turned out to be an old-fashioned horror film in spite of modern settings and bold dialogue. "A Taste of Evil" was full of creaking floors, high screams, scary footprints and a corpse that kept appearing and disappearing.

Barbara Parkins played a young woman returning to her rich family after years in a Swiss sanitarium recovering from mental shock induced by a physical assault when she was 13.

Barbara Stanwyck turned in a workmanlike job as the concerned mother of the frightened girl but was even more effective when she was revealed as a tough, unrepentant schemer.

It was pretty complicated and preposterous, but it kept the viewer on the edge of an easy chair. "Movie of the Week" this season is specializing in suspense, horror and the off-beat.

Sappers Blow Up Copters In Attack Near Saigon

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong sappers blew up two U.S. helicopters early today and damaged three others in an attack eight miles northeast of Saigon, the U.S. Command announced.

The Command also reported that the North Vietnamese fired two surface-to-air missiles—SAMS—at an American reconnaissance plane and its two fighter-bomber escorts over North Vietnam. The missiles missed, and the escorts did not retaliate, the command said.

A spokesman said the sappers slipped into the Di An base camp during the night and attacked the parked UH1 helicopters with demolition charges.

The helicopters at Di An have been supporting a South Vietnamese counteroffensive along the Cambodian border. They fly out of the Tay Ninh forward base, 55 miles northwest of Saigon, but return to Di An each night because it is considered safer than Tay Ninh.

A sixth helicopter—an AH1 Cobra gunship—was shot down half a mile from U.S. Fire Base Pace, on the Cambodian border in the area of the South Vietnamese counteroffensive.

The U.S. Command said two crewmen were wounded in the crash, and at least one other American was wounded when 35 mortar rounds hit the base on the 18th day of shelling.

The U.S. Command said there were no casualties on either side in the attack on Di An. "Two of the sappers were sighted as they fled, but there was no other contact," a communique said.

Less than a month ago, Viet Cong sappers blew up 300 tons of ammunition in a dump on the outskirts of Saigon. The last sapper attack on a U.S. helicopter installation was at Lai Khe, 30 miles north of Saigon, on July 27. The sappers destroyed four helicopters, damaged a fifth and got away without any casualties.

The North Vietnamese SAM attack occurred Tuesday afternoon 85 miles northwest of the demilitarized zone, a U.S. communique said, and "there was no damage to the U.S. aircraft." It was the first time missiles had been reported fired against U.S. reconnaissance planes over the North since July 10.

In the Cambodian border campaign, new fighting broke out half a mile south of an embattled South Vietnamese artillery base, Alpha, which is on the Cambodian side of the border.

The fighting occurred about midmorning when three companies of South Vietnamese rangers and a South Vietnamese tank column moved out of the base on a security operation. Aided by U.S. helicopter gunships and South Vietnamese fighter-bombers, the South Vietnamese claimed 29 North Vietnamese killed and said their own casualties were three wounded.

SAIGON (AP) — Five U.S. Navy enlisted men are circulating a petition among other servicemen in Saigon calling on Congress to take steps for an immediate halt in the Vietnam war and to order the withdrawal of all American forces.

The five call themselves Vietnam Veterans Against War and claim 500 signatures on their petition so far. They plan to send it to Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of Foreign Relations Committee, when they obtain 1,000 names.

A U.S. Navy headquarters spokesman said: "We are looking into it. We are monitoring it closely to make sure no regulations are violated."

The Navy said the five men are P.O. 2.C. Edward A. Vascinder, Lancaster, N.Y.; P.O. 3.C. Robert M. Estey, Orangevale, Calif.; P.O. 3.C. James E. Carlson, Foster City, Calif.; P.O. 2.C. James R. Mohler II, Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, and P.O. 2.C. Roy E. Butler, Holand, Ohio.

They say that other servicemen are circulating the petition outside of Saigon.

The petition reads: "We, the undersigned American servicemen on duty in Vietnam, wish to express our opposition to further United States military involvement by air, sea, or land forces in Vietnam, Laos, Cambodia or other countries in Southeast Asia."

"We petition the United States Congress to take whatever action necessary to insure an immediate cessation of all hostilities in Southeast Asia; to ANKAWRA (AP) — Turkey and other allies now understand that the United States cannot be "the policeman of the world any more," said Vice President Spiro T. Agnew as he prepared to fly to Iran today to join in celebration of the 2,500th anniversary of the Persian monarchy.

Agnew concluded two days of conferences with Turkish officials Tuesday night and said he found the outlook "very, very encouraging."

"I find the attitudes of the officials with whom I talked are very solidly pro-NATO, anti-Communist, pro-West in the sense of the identity with the rest of the Western community," the vice president said.

Agnew praised the efforts of Premier Nihat Erim's government to institute political, educational and land reforms. He said the government "seems to be a very firmly established one," but Erim faces political discord and possible crisis, in part because of conservative resistance to his reform proposals.

Agnew said he assured the Turks "we're not going to abandon our commitment to the treaty countries, and we recognize they must be assured of the validity of our stance."

But Agnew said he told Turkish officials that Americans are dismayed at "leftist propaganda around the world... unjustified accusations of imperialism, of what you might call an aggressive foreign policy."

"They understand that the United States cannot be physically present as the policeman of the world any more. That's completely evident to them."

In Iran, Agnew will join heads of state or other representatives from more than 50 nations for the anniversary ceremonies at Persepolis, the ancient Persian capital.

He said he hopes that along with the pageantry, there may be some diplomacy—"perhaps we will get a chance for some informal conversations."

LONDON (UPI) — Immigrants from Commonwealth countries will no longer have to register with the police under an amendment to the proposed immigration bill passed by the House of Lords.

The amendment, approved Monday night, cancels a section of the bill requiring registration action. Lord Windlesham, minister of state, said the amendment would be reflected in immigration rules. Aliens will still have to register.

U.N. Diplomats Predict Failure on Try for Taiwan

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—Diplomats at the United Nations predicted today the U.S. plan to preserve Nationalist China's seat will fail.

Sources said unofficial diplomatic tabulations showed more than 60 delegations opposed the U.S. plan and fewer than 60 supported it. But at least 12 of the 131 delegations still had not disclosed their positions.

The United States has agreed to the seating of Communist China in both the General Assembly and the Security Council. But the resolution for Peking's membership, sponsored by Albania, also demands the expulsion of Nationalist China.

The United States countered the expulsion demanded with a resolution requiring a two-thirds vote of the assembly to expel Nationalist China, not merely a simple majority.

Diplomats estimated the U.S. resolution does not have the majority support necessary for passage. The prediction was based on indications received during assembly policy debate.

Foreign ministers and other delegation leaders from 106 nations spoke during the policy debate which began Sept. 27 and ends today. Debate on China begins next week.

James L. Buckley, a Conservative party senator from New York, has said that a group of 21 senators would introduce legislation "calling for a dramatic reduction in the extent of America's financial support of the United Nations" if Chiang Kai-shek's Taiwan government is expelled.

Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-Ill., introduced a bill Tuesday limiting U.S. contributions to the United Nations after Jan. 1.

Meanwhile, the AP reports that Secretary of State William P. Rogers begins two days of bilateral talks with officials of at least 20 nations today, among them Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban.

The secretary, who arrived here Tuesday night, is scheduled to meet with diplomats from the Philippines, Yemen, Nigeria, Malta, Romania, Hungary and Costa Rica, among others attending the United Nations General Assembly, before returning to Washington Thursday.

Move on IRA Crossings

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—The British army began blowing up minor roads along the border with the Irish Republic today in an effort to curb illegal crossings by the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA), an army spokesman said.

The army issued a one-line statement that said the new move was designed to stop the IRA from smuggling men into Northern Ireland to fight British troops.

"A unit of the royal engineers began an operation this morning to close selected unimproved roads," the army statement said. A spokesman later confirmed that the action meant the roads were blown up.

Prime Minister Brian Faulkner Tuesday told the Stormont, the Northern Ireland Parliament, that "certain measures will shortly be taken on which I do not wish to elaborate at present."

Following a meeting last week in London between Faulkner and Prime Minister Edward Heath of Britain, there were reports that border security would be stepped up.

There was newspaper speculation that the reported decision to blow up the border roads may have been taken at that meeting. The aim of such action would be to cut off gunmen's entry and exit routes.

There are more than 200 roads, most of them minor, linking the republic with Northern Ireland. Blowing up or making craters in many of them was done between 1950 and 1962 during border raids by the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA).

That operation angered local residents who use the minor roads as shortcuts and many of the holes were refilled after security forces left the area.

A British army patrol at Newry came under sniper fire today just as two land mines were detonated, an army spokesman said. He said no one was injured in the ambush. Troops in Belfast were fired on in nine separate incidents Tuesday night, the spokesman said. Pvt. Ian Gibson of the Green Howards suffered a minor flesh wound in an attack of a fire.

in the Roman Catholic Ardoyne area. Three explosions in a South Belfast shopping center caused severe damage but no injuries, he said, and a blast at a timber yard in East Belfast touched off a fire.
